

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
DECISION OF THE
PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD

ORANGE COUNTY WATER DISTRICT
EMPLOYEES ASSOCIATION,

Charging Party,

v.

ORANGE COUNTY WATER DISTRICT,

Respondent.

Case No. LA-CE-856-M

PERB Decision No. 2454-M

September 23, 2015

Appearances: Donald Drozd, Attorney, for Orange County Water District Employees Association; Rutan & Tucker by George W. Shaeffer, Jr., Attorney, for Orange County Water District.

Before Martinez, Chair; Winslow and Gregersen, Members.

DECISION

MARTINEZ, Chair: This case is before the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB or Board) on exceptions filed by the Orange County Water District (District) to a proposed decision (attached) by a PERB administrative law judge (ALJ). The complaint alleges that the District refused to participate in an agency shop election in violation of section 3502.5 of the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (MMBA).<sup>1</sup> The District asserts that an employer is

- (a) Notwithstanding Section 3502, any other provision of this chapter, or any other law, rule, or regulation, an agency shop agreement may be negotiated between a public agency and a recognized public employee organization that has been recognized as the exclusive or majority bargaining agent pursuant to reasonable rules and regulations, ordinances, and enactments, in accordance with this chapter. As used in this chapter, "agency shop" means an arrangement that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized employee organization or withhold its consent to the conduct of an agency shop election where the organizational security arrangement sought by the recognized employee organization is unlawful. The type of organizational security arrangement sought by the Orange County Water District Employees Association (Association) is referred to by the parties as a modified agency shop. It applies to future hires, not current employees. According to the District, because the modified agency shop permits current employees to "free ride," it violates the very principle courts have relied on in finding agency shop to be a valid form of union or organizational security. Therefore to pay the organization a service fee in an amount not to exceed the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of the organization.

(b) In addition to the procedure prescribed in subdivision (a), an agency shop arrangement between the public agency and a recognized employee organization that has been recognized as the exclusive or majority bargaining agent shall be placed in effect, without a negotiated agreement, upon (1) a signed petition of 30 percent of the employees in the applicable bargaining unit requesting an agency shop agreement and an election to implement an agency fee arrangement, and (2) the approval of a majority of employees who cast ballots and vote in a secret ballot election in favor of the agency shop agreement. The petition may be filed only after the recognized employee organization has requested the public agency to negotiate on an agency shop arrangement and, beginning seven working days after the public agency received this request, the two parties have had 30 calendar days to attempt good faith negotiations in an effort to reach agreement. An election that may not be held more frequently than once a year shall be conducted by the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service in the event that the public agency and the recognized employee organization cannot agree within 10 days from the filing of the petition to select jointly a neutral person or entity to conduct the election. In the event of an agency fee arrangement outside of an agreement that is in effect, the recognized employee organization shall indemnify and hold the public agency harmless against any liability arising from a claim, demand, or other action relating to the public agency's compliance with the agency fee obligation.

- (c) [religious objector exemption]
- (d) [agency shop rescission election]
- (e) [management employee exclusion]
- (f) [financial reporting requirement]

organizational security. Therefore argues the District, the modified agency shop is unlawful and the District is privileged to withhold its consent to the conduct of the petitioned-for election.

A pre-hearing conference with the ALJ was held to discuss the presentation of evidence. The parties agreed that the issue to be decided was purely a question of law. Thus, the parties agreed that the matter would be submitted for decision following the filing of a joint stipulation of material facts, the filing of opening briefs, oral argument before the ALJ and the filing of closing briefs. In addition, the District filed two requests for judicial notice. The first sought to introduce legislative history materials concerning MMBA section 3502.5 and a page from PERB's website titled "Procedures for mandated agency shop elections;" the second, federal district court attorney's fees orders. The ALJ granted both requests.

The ALJ issued her decision on February 26, 2015, concluding that the District violated MMBA section 3502.5 when it refused to participate in a properly petitioned-for agency shop election. The proposed decision also concluded that the District failed to assert a valid defense to its actions. The District timely filed a statement of exceptions, and the Association timely filed a response.

The Board has reviewed the hearing record in its entirety, including the joint stipulation of material facts, the opening and closing briefs, the transcript of the oral argument and the judicially or officially noticed materials. The Board has considered the issues on appeal raised by the District in its statement of exceptions and by the Association in its response thereto, in light of the applicable law. Based on this review, the Board concludes that the proposed decision is adequately supported by the evidentiary record, well-reasoned and consistent with all relevant legal principles. We find no merit in the District's exceptions. Accordingly, the Board hereby affirms in full the conclusion reached in the proposed decision that the modified agency shop petitioned for by the Association is lawful and the District violated the MMBA when it refused to participate in the properly petitioned-for election. The Board adopts the proposed decision, including its procedural history, statement of jurisdiction, findings of fact, identification of issue, conclusions of law, remedy, proposed order and Notice, as the decision of the Board itself as supplemented by a discussion of the District's exceptions.

FACTUAL SUMMARY

The essential stipulated material facts on which the ALJ based her decision are as follows: In May 2011, the Association proposed a modified agency shop in the course of successor agreement negotiations. The proposed agency shop arrangement would apply to all new District employees hired on or after a future date whereas current employees would be exempt. In or about July 2012, the Association made a second attempt to reach agreement with the District, requesting that the District reopen the parties' labor contract to negotiate over the Association's modified agency shop proposal. The District rejected each attempt, asserting that the proposed modified agency shop is not authorized under MMBA section 3502.5 because it applies only to new hires.

On or about November 14, 2012, the Association served the District and the State Mediation and Conciliation Service (SMCS) with a "Petition [and] Request for Agency Shop Election" (Petition), stating that no confidential or management employees were included in the bargaining unit and that the Petition was signed by approximately 98 percent of unit members.<sup>2</sup> The Petition provides:

We, the undersigned employees of the Orange County Water District represented by the Orange County Employees Association, hereby request a Modified Agency Shop Agreement

<sup>2</sup> There are 184 employees in the bargaining unit represented by the Association. Of that total, 126 are dues-paying members. The Petition bears the signature of 125 bargaining unit employees. It appears that approximately 98 percent of union members, not unit members, signed the Petition.

other applicable laws or regulations. Pursuant to the Modified Agency Shop Agreement and Arrangement, all employees hired on or after March 1, 2013, will be required to join as members [of] the Orange County Employees Association or pay to the Orange County Employees Association a "service fee" as set forth in Government Code Section 3502.5 (a), et seq. All employees hired prior to March 1, 2013 are specifically excluded from the Modified Agency Shop Agreement and Arrangement.

(Bold in the original.)

SMCS contacted the District, in an e-mail received by the Director of Human Resources, to request a meeting to discuss the mechanics of the election. The District's legal counsel responded, requesting a postponement of the meeting, raising the issue whether SMCS had the authority to conduct an election for the proposed modified agency shop. SMCS informed the District that it did not have the authority under the MMBA to rule on the legality of a proposed agency fee arrangement, but that it was available to check the level of support and, if sufficient, conduct an election.

After receiving further direction from the District's governing board, the District's legal counsel informed SMCS that it would not consent to an election for the petitioned-for modified agency shop. The District reasserted its position that an agency shop arrangement is permissible only if it applies to all bargaining unit employees.

PROPOSED DECISION<sup>3</sup>

Harmonizing MMBA section 3502.5 with PERB Regulation 32999<sup>4</sup> in light of the purpose of the statutory amendment to allow for agency shop elections, the ALJ determined that the regulatory requirement that the public agency employer “consent” to an election cannot be interpreted to mean that the public agency employer’s participation in an agency shop election is “voluntary,” as the District argued. As the ALJ stated:

<sup>3</sup> For the convenience of the reader, a summary of the proposed decision is provided in the body of the Board's decision. This summary is no substitute for reading the proposed decision itself, which contains PERB's first analysis of the novel issue presented, an analysis endorsed by the Board.

<sup>4</sup> PERB regulations are codified at California Code of Regulations, title 8, section 31001 et seq. PERB Regulation 32999 provides:

In essence, the District argues that it may lawfully prevent an agency shop election by refusing to participate in the SMCS process to determine the time, place and manner of the election. If true, this would defeat the entire purpose for which Senate Bill 739 was adopted—to eliminate the employer’s ability to unilaterally prevent the conduct of an agency shop election. Such an interpretation eviscerates the statutory right of an employee organization to permit employees to choose whether to enact an agency shop. On this basis alone, the District’s interpretation of PERB regulations must be rejected.

(Proposed decision, p. 19, italics in the original.)

The District defended its actions before the ALJ on several grounds. The District argued that the Association’s petitioned-for modified agency shop is unlawful because it violates the First Amendment of the United States Constitution. The District also argued that because the petitioned-for modified agency shop does not apply to all bargaining unit employees and therefore does not serve the purpose of preventing all bargaining unit employees from becoming free riders, it does not fit the statutory definition of an agency shop. The District also argued that the indemnity provision under MMBA section 3502.5,

(a) The provisions of this Article are applicable whenever SMCS conducts representation and agency shop elections pursuant to the local rules of an MMBA, Trial Court Act or Court Interpreter Act employer.

(b) SMCS shall conduct such elections only pursuant to a Consent Election Agreement entered into by all parties and SMCS. The term “Consent Election Agreement” means either an agreement by the parties as to the time, place and manner of an election, or an agreement by the parties that authorizes the election supervisor assigned by SMCS to determine the time, place and manner of the election.

subdivision (b),<sup>5</sup> is inadequate protection against potential employer liability arising out of agency fee litigation. The ALJ correctly rejected each of the District's arguments.

Regarding the District's First Amendment argument, as the ALJ reasoned, under current United States Supreme Court law, agency shop arrangements are permitted in public sector employment. (Abood v. Detroit Board of Education (1977) 431 U.S. 209 (Abood)). Although recent Supreme Court opinions have been critical of public sector agency shop arrangements, the Supreme Court to date has not found the agency shop unconstitutional on any ground, including the First Amendment. (See Pamela Harris, et al. v. Pat Quinn, Governor of Illinois, et al. (2014) 134 S.Ct. 2618 (Harris); Diane Knox, et al. v. Service Employees International Union, Local 1000 (2012) 132 S.Ct. 2277 (Knox)).

Regarding the District's statutory argument, the ALJ appropriately took guidance from federal private sector law in concluding that nothing in the language of MMBA section 3502.5 expressly disallows the type of agency shop sought by the Association. Regarding the argument that agency fee litigation could expose the District to liability far in excess of the Association's financial wherewithal, the ALJ concluded that notwithstanding the speculative nature of the District's assertion, the statute's explicit indemnification provision precludes the District from raising its concern about potential liability as a defense to its refusal to participate in the petitioned-for agency shop election. Such concerns, as the ALJ appropriately noted, should be directed to, and addressed by, the Legislature. Finally, the ALJ stated that to the

In the event of an agency fee arrangement outside of an agreement that is in effect, the recognized employee organization shall indemnify and hold the public agency harmless against any liability arising from a claim, demand, or other action relating to the public agency's compliance with the agency fee obligation.

(MMBA, § 3502.5, subd. (b).)

extent the District is attempting to assert the rights of bargaining unit employees who would be required to pay an agency fee under the modified agency shop, such argument must be rejected for lack of standing.

To remedy the District's violation of MMBA section 3502.5, the ALJ ordered the District to cease and desist from refusing to participate in the properly petitioned-for agency shop election. The ALJ also ordered the District to, within 10 days of service of a final decision, enter into a "Consent Election Agreement" (CEA) with the Association or authorize the SMCS to prepare a CEA governing the mechanics of said election.

THE DISTRICT'S EXCEPTIONS

On appeal, the District makes many of the same arguments it made before the ALJ. The District argues that MMBA section 3502.5 is clear in its purpose to prevent free riders. According to the District, a modified agency shop encourages free riders and therefore is in direct conflict with the statute. The District contends that after Knox and Harris, "modified agency shops cannot stand in the face of United States Supreme Court evolving First Amendment jurisprudence."

The District's exceptions to the proposed decision total 90. There are 72 exceptions to statements of rationale and 18 exceptions to conclusions of law. Pages 23 through 31 of the "Respondent's Statement of Exceptions and Supporting Brief" (Appeal) is copied, almost verbatim, from pages 5 through 13 of the District's opening brief to the ALJ; and pages 31 through 37 of the District's Appeal is copied, with minor variation, from various sections of the District's opening and closing briefs to the ALJ. It is not until page 38 that the Appeal specifically identifies how the ALJ erred. The District states:

The ALJ fails to identify in its rationale (PD pp. 6-22), any authority under California law or federal law which expressly authorizes or approves an agency shop which exempts current employees in the bargaining unit, and which only applies to newly hired employees after a future date.

The District's substantive exceptions are identified and addressed in the discussion below.

DISCUSSION

Despite the surplus of exceptions, this case boils down to a relatively straightforward question of law, a question of law that was comprehensively explored and rationally and reasonably decided by the ALJ. Moreover, many of the District's arguments contained in the Appeal were already made to the ALJ in briefing and oral argument, and were already addressed by the ALJ in the proposed decision with which the Board agrees.

While it is true that the ALJ did not identify "any authority under California or federal law that expressly authorizes or approves" the petitioned for modified agency shop arrangement, it is also true the District has not identified any authority under California or federal law that expressly invalidates or disapproves such arrangement.<sup>6</sup> As the District knows from the Association's briefing below, there appears to be only one authority that directly addresses the validity of a modified agency shop, which the ALJ chose not to rely on. That authority is California Attorney General Opinion No. 02-309, issued on September 24, 2003. It concerns an MMBA employer like the District, and it found that a modified agency shop, such as the one contemplated here, falls within the scope of MMBA section 3502.5.

(86 Ops.Cal.Atty.Gen. 169 (2003).) The issue was whether an agency shop election could be

<sup>6</sup> In a version of this same argument, the District argues that the cases relied on in the proposed decision do not support the proposition that a modified agency shop is lawful. City of Hayward, et al. v. United Public Employees, Local 390, Service Employees International Union. AFL-CIO (1976) 54 Cal.App.3d 761, 768 (City of Hayward) nor Rae, et al. v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Supervisory and Professional Assn, et al. (1980) 114 Cal.App.3d 147, 153 were relied on in the proposed decision, but not as direct authority for the ultimate conclusion reached that a modified agency shop is lawful. Rather, these cases were cited for their historical value and for the general proposition that agency shop in the public sector is the practical equivalent of union shop in the private sector. As acknowledged at the outset of the proposed decision, the issue presented in this case is a novel issue of first impression. That, by definition, means that there is no case authority directly on point.

conducted during the term of an existing memorandum of understanding containing a modified agency shop provision. The Attorney General concluded that such an election could be conducted if the current agency shop provision is first rescinded by the employees or removed from the agreement by negotiations. In reaching this conclusion, the Attorney General had to determine as a threshold matter whether the current modified agency shop provision met the statutory definition of agency shop. After first defining a modified agency shop provision as an “agency shop provision that excludes employees hired before a specified date” and examining the language of MMBA section 3502.5, the opinion states:

Applying these principles of statutory construction, we first note that a “modified” agency shop provision comes within the terms of section 3502.5, meeting the definition contained in subdivision (a) of “an arrangement that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized employee organization, or to pay the organization a service fee....” (Italics added.) Not all employees are required to join the union or pay a service fee under the statute. For example, employees are to be excluded if they object to union membership based upon religious grounds (§ 3502.5, subd. (c)) . . . .

<sup>7</sup> Opinions of the Attorney General are not binding, but are entitled to considerable weight by the courts. (County of Orange v. Association of Orange County Deputy Sheriffs (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 21, 36-37.) As County of Orange stated:

“Reliance on Attorney General opinions is particularly appropriate where, as here, no clear case authority exists, and the factual context of the opinions is closely parallel to that under review.” (Thorpe v. Long Beach Community College Dist. (2000) 83 Cal.App.4th 655, 662–663, 99 Cal.Rptr.2d 897.) There is no clear case authority on this issue, and the 1982 opinion has a similar factual context involving the state’s analogous debt limitation provision. We find the analysis in the 1982 opinion persuasive, and that analysis supports the conclusion that a UAAL such as the $100 million cited by the County in this case is an actuarial estimate projecting the impact of a change in a benefit plan, rather than a legally enforceable obligation measured at the time of the County’s 2001 resolution approving the 3% at 50 formula.

Although PERB is not bound by the analysis or outcome expressed in the Attorney General opinion, it is at least of note that the only existing authority addressing the validity of modified agency shop provides no support for the District's position. Although the ALJ did not rely on this Attorney General opinion, she reached the same result by a careful examination of MMBA section 3502.5's language and purpose, the regulatory scheme and relevant private sector and PERB precedent. Interpretation of the statutory schemes administered by PERB draws on PERB's judicially-recognized expertise in the area of California public sector labor law. (See, e.g., Banning Teachers Association v. PERB (1988) 44 Cal.3d 799, 804.)

Along with its statement of exceptions, the District made two procedural requests, one for oral argument and another for judicial notice. Regarding the District's request for oral argument, which the Association opposes, the Board historically denies requests for oral argument when an adequate record has been prepared, the parties had ample opportunity to present briefs and have availed themselves of that opportunity, and the issues before the Board are sufficiently clear to make oral argument unnecessary. (Antelope Valley Health Care District (2006) PERB Decision No. 1816-M; Monterey County Office of Education (1991) PERB Decision No. 913.) Here, the material facts are not in dispute. They, in fact, were stipulated to. The legal issue, while novel, is clear and straightforward. The parties have submitted three sets of briefs, two to the ALJ and one to the Board. The parties presented oral argument to the ALJ, the transcript of which has been reviewed by the Board. Accordingly, the District's request for oral argument is denied. The District's repetition of significant portions of its written argument before the ALJ in its Appeal to the Board confirms that there is a limit on how much can be said, and that no further argument, whether written or oral, is necessary.

Regarding the District's request for judicial notice, the District requests judicial notice of the same materials that were the subject of the District's request for judicial notice directed to the ALJ. The ALJ granted both requests. The ALJ's rulings were not excepted to, and we do not disturb them here.<sup>8</sup>

I. MMBA Section 3502.5

The MMBA itself did not explicitly authorize agency shop agreements until 1981 when MMBA section 3502.5 was enacted. Under the original version of MMBA section 3502.5, agency shop could only be adopted by mutual consent of the parties. Almost 20 years later, in 2000, the Legislature amended MMBA section 3502.5 with Senate Bill 739 (Stats. 2000, ch. 901, § 3) to authorize agency shop by a negotiated agreement as well as by a secret ballot election at the option of the exclusive representative. As acknowledged by both the supporters and opponents of the amendment, the amendment was intended to reduce the public agency employer's control over the decision whether to adopt agency shop. With the amendment, public agency employers could no longer prevent an agency shop from being adopted in the absence of a mutual agreement. Instead, where the exclusive representative desires agency shop and cannot reach agreement with the public agency employer to incorporate an agency shop provision into the parties' labor contract, a simple voting majority can override that stalemate by voting agency shop into effect. A bargaining unit majority can also vote agency shop out of effect through a rescission election. (MMBA, § 3502.5, subd. (d).) In other words, in the absence of a mutual agreement, the decision whether to be governed by agency shop is decided by employees, and employees alone.

Under the current version of MMBA section 3502.5, the exclusive representative must make a good faith attempt in negotiations to include an agency shop provision in the parties' labor contract, as the Association has done here. If unsuccessful, an agency shop arrangement "shall be placed in effect" without a negotiated agreement upon the satisfaction of two conditions: (1) a signed petition of at least 30 percent of bargaining unit employees requesting an election to implement an agency shop arrangement; and (2) the approval of a majority of employees who voted in the election. “An election . . . shall be conducted by [SMCS] in the event that the public agency and the recognized employee organization cannot agree within 10 days from the filing of the petition to select jointly a neutral person or entity to conduct the election.” (§ 3502.5, subd. (b), emphasis supplied.)

PERB Regulation 32999, subdivision (b), provides that SMCS shall conduct such an election pursuant to a CEA entered into by the parties and SMCS. A CEA means one of two things: (1) an agreement by the parties as to the time, place and manner of an election; or (2) an agreement by the parties authorizing the SMCS election supervisor to determine the time, place and manner of the election.

II. The Meaning and Purpose of the Statutory and Regulatory Scheme

A. The Statutory Meaning of Agency Shop

The District relies on City of Hayward, supra, 54 Cal.App.3d 761 for the proposition that “a court may not add or detract from a statute or insert or delete words to accomplish a purpose that does not appear on its face or from its legislative history.” (Id. at p. 766.) The District argues that MMBA section 3502.5 applies only to full agency shop and that the ALJ erred by re-writing the statute to include modified agency shop.

In construing any statute, “[w]ell-established rules of statutory construction require us to ascertain the intent of the enacting legislative body so that we may adopt the construction that best effectuates the purpose of the law.” (Hassan v. Mercy American River Hospital (2003) 31 Cal.4th 709, 715.)

“We first examine the words themselves because the statutory language is generally the most reliable indicator of legislative intent. [Citation.] The words of the statute should be given their ordinary and usual meaning and should be construed in their statutory context.”

(Ibid.) If the statutory language is unambiguous, “we presume the Legislature meant what it said, and the plain meaning of the statute governs.” (People v. Robles (2000) 23 Cal.4th 1106, 1111, 99 Cal.Rptr.2d 120, 5 P.3d 176.)

(Whaley v. Sony Computer Entertainment America, Inc. (2004) 121 Cal.App.4th 479, 485.)

MMBA section 3502.5 refers neither to full agency shop nor modified agency shop. It simply refers to agency shop or agency fee agreement or arrangement. The District argues that agency shop must refer to an agreement or arrangement that obligates all employees to pay dues or fees. But the language in question merely refers to an arrangement “that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized employee organization or to pay the organization a service fee . . . .” The statute does not refer to “all” employees, just “an” employee.<sup>9</sup>

Compelling payment of agency fees as a condition of continued employment is all that the statute dictates. The particular terms and conditions of the agency shop arrangement are left to the exclusive representative to propose and negotiate with the employer or to the bargaining unit employees to vote on. If the bargaining unit employees do not like the exclusive representative’s proposal, they can vote it down. Also, under MMBA section 3502.5, subdivision (d), an agency shop may be rescinded by a majority vote of all employees in the bargaining unit at any time during the term of the labor contract. Thus, despite the District’s contention to the contrary, a modified agency shop that applies only to newly-hired employees in no way disenfranchises them from petitioning for, and participating in, a rescission election under section 3502.5, subdivision (d).

<sup>9</sup> The District points out that City of Hayward, supra, 54 Cal.App.3d 761 uses the word “all” to modify “employees” in describing employees subject to agency shop. That full agency shop applies to “all” bargaining unit employees does not mean that lesser forms of union or organizational security, like modified agency shop, are unlawful. As the District points out, judicial opinions are not authority for propositions not considered. (Loeffler v. Target Corp. (2014) 58 Cal.4th 1081, 1134.)

Although future hires cannot vote in an election to adopt modified agency shop, they also cannot vote in an election to adopt a full agency shop. At the time of the election for either form of agency shop, they have yet to be hired. As a general matter, future hires are bound by the terms and conditions of employment existing at their time of hire. Their prospective satisfaction or dissatisfaction with agency shop, whether modified or full, is not a statutory consideration.<sup>10</sup> Under the plain meaning of the statute, there is no basis on which to conclude that MMBA section 3502.5's definition of agency shop does not include the modified agency shop arrangement petitioned for by the Association.

The District is correct that agency shop addresses the problem of free riders. But the 2000 amendment to MMBA section 3502.5 was intended by the Legislature to address a different problem. That problem was the unwillingness or refusal of some public agency employers to incorporate an agency shop provision into their labor contract by mutual agreement. As mentioned above, the 2000 amendment to MMBA section 3502.5 took the decision whether to adopt agency shop out of the hands of public agency employers and placed it squarely and firmly in the hands of bargaining unit employees. The District's position in this case is at odds with the purpose of that amendment. Under the ordinary rules of statutory construction, a construction of the statute that allows bargaining unit employees, rather than public agency employers, to decide whether to adopt any form of agency shop best effectuates the purpose of the statute.<sup>11</sup>

<sup>10</sup> Future hires are not covered within the definition of public employee under the MMBA. (§ 3501, subd. (d) [“‘[p]ublic employee’ means any person employed by any public agency, . . .”].)

<sup>11</sup> As the United States Supreme Court recently concluded in rejecting a construction of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act that likely would have the effect of creating death spirals in individual insurance markets; a result Congress designed the Act to avoid:

B. The District Lacks Authority to Withhold its Consent to the Election

The District argues that the ALJ erred in harmonizing PERB Regulation 32999 with MMBA section 3502.5 to conclude that the District lacks authority to withhold its consent to the election. The District asserts that PERB Regulation 32999 “clearly and unmistakably” requires the public agency employer’s consent to an agency shop election. The District states: “The District, as an MMBA employer, must consent to an agency shop election for it to occur.”

PERB Regulation 32999 states that SMCS shall conduct elections pursuant to a CEA. But, under the regulation, the public agency employer has only two options. It may enter into an agreement with the exclusive representative as to the time, place and manner of an election. Or, it may enter into an agreement with the exclusive representative authorizing the SMCS election supervisor to determine the time, place and manner of the election. The “consent” required of the public agency employer under the regulation concerns the manner of determining election mechanics. Requiring the public agency employer to consent to one or another manner of determining election mechanics does not translate into a broad power to refuse to participate in the election itself.

The District’s construction of PERB Regulation 32999 would defeat the very purpose of the 2000 amendment to MMBA section 3502.5, which was to disempower public agency employers from determining the fate of agency shop for a bargaining unit. The District’s construction would also directly contradict the statute’s command that an agency shop “shall be placed in effect” without a negotiated agreement upon the satisfaction of only two conditions, a signed petition of 30 percent of bargaining unit employees and the approval of a majority of employees casting ballots. In the event the parties cannot agree to a neutral person or entity to conduct the election, the election “shall be conducted” by SMCS. (§ 3502.5, subd. (b).) There is no further requirement that the public agency employer “consent to an agency shop election for it to occur” and we will not interpret our regulations to defeat the Legislature’s clear intent.

Congress passed the Affordable Care Act to improve health insurance markets, not destroy them. If at all possible, we must interpret the Act in a way that is consistent with the former, and avoids the latter. Section 36B can fairly be read consistent with what we see as Congress’s plan, and that is the reading we adopt.

The District asserts that PERB Regulation 32999 “is designed to avoid the absurdity of being forced to participate in an agency shop election that is unlawful.” No reading of PERB Regulation 32999 supports that assertion. In the event a future hire who becomes an agency fee payer under the petitioned-for modified agency shop disagrees with the Association’s determination of chargeable expenditures, that person may file an agency fee challenge. (PERB Reg. 32994.) A public agency employer does not have standing to challenge that determination. (Ibid.) To the extent a public agency employer is concerned about its own liability for participating in an agency shop found to be unlawful, MMBA section 3502.5 allows the employer to be held harmless and to seek indemnity from the exclusive representative. (§ 3502.5, subd. (b).)

The District claims that this statutory indemnification and hold harmless provision is inadequate because employee organizations lack adequate resources to fulfill their statutory obligations. Public agency employers such as the District may appeal to the Legislature to address such concerns.<sup>12</sup>

<sup>12</sup> Article III, section 3 of the California Constitution contains the separation of powers clause. It precludes one branch of government from usurping or improperly interfering with the essential operations of either of the other two branches. (7 Witkin, Summary of Cal. Law (10th ed. 2005) Constitutional Law, § 137, p. 249.)

The Petition was signed by at least 30 percent of employees in the bargaining unit, thus meeting the threshold statutory requirement. That these bargaining unit employees would be exempt from compulsory dues/fees obligations under the petitioned-for modified agency shop does not give the District license to deprive them and their fellow bargaining unit members of their statutory right to vote. The District's position in this case is premised in part on the notion that bargaining unit employees, if given the choice, would rather ride free than financially support the recognized employee organization that represents them in collective bargaining. The facts do not support the District's position. With no compulsory dues system currently in place, 126 out of 184 bargaining unit employees, or 68 percent of the bargaining unit, have become dues-paying members of the Association of their own free will. The District's alleged concern about the problem of free riders is overstated at best, and not shared by the Association, the party that would be most directly affected by the problem of free riders.

In sum, as the ALJ concluded, the specific intent of the 2000 amendment to MMBA section 3502.5, which allowed bargaining unit employees to determine for themselves whether to approve an agency shop by way of a secret ballot election, was to limit the public agency employer's sphere of decision-making to selection of a neutral to conduct the election. Pursuant to PERB Regulation 32999, the public agency employer's options are to enter into an agreement with the exclusive representative as to the time, place and manner of the election or agree with the exclusive representative to allow SMCS to determine election mechanics. We therefore decline the District's invitation to adopt an interpretation of MMBA section 3502.5 that would empower the District to undermine fundamental principles of organizational security and majority vote by refusing to participate in a secret ballot election provided to the bargaining unit by the Legislature. Accordingly, the District's statutory construction argument is rejected.

III. The First Amendment<sup>13</sup>

The District relies on Harris and Knox to argue that a modified agency shop implicates First Amendment concerns. Agency shop arrangements in the public sector raise First Amendment concerns “because they force individuals to contribute money to unions as a condition of government employment.” (Davenport v. Washington Education Association (2007) 551 U.S. 177, 181.) Under Abood, supra, 431 U.S. 209, however, the United States Supreme Court held that bargaining unit members in the public sector can be compelled to pay agency fees (also referred to as financial core fees) to the union for the cost of performing the representational duties of an exclusive representative. But, public sector unions are prohibited under the First Amendment from using the fees of objecting nonmembers for ideological purposes that are not germane to the union’s collective bargaining duties. (Id. at pp. 235-236.) And, under Chicago Teachers Union v. Hudson (1986) 475 U.S. 292, 302, 304-310 (Hudson), public sector unions collecting fees must observe certain procedural requirements in order to ensure that objecting nonmembers can prevent the use of their fees for impermissible purposes. The Supreme Court in Knox and Harris declined to revisit Abood, but expressed criticism of its fundamental premise, i.e., that an agency fee payment can be compelled under an organizational security provision without infringing on the First Amendment.

<sup>13</sup> An administrative agency has no power to declare a statute unconstitutional. (Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, subd. (b).) Neither can an administrative agency declare a statute enforceable, or refuse to enforce it, on the grounds that it is unconstitutional unless it previously has been determined to be unconstitutional by an appellate court. (Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, subd. (a).) Article III, section 3.5 of the California Constitution does not prevent PERB from construing the statutory schemes it administers “in light of constitutional standards.” (See, Cumero v. PERB (1989) 49 Cal.3d 575, 583.)

No court has declared MMBA section 3502.5 to be unconstitutional and therefore this agency is duty bound to enforce it. The District may disagree with PERB’s construction of the statute, but cannot argue that PERB is constrained from applying or enforcing it based on a litigant’s assertion of its unconstitutionality.

The United States Supreme Court granted writ of certiorari in Friedrichs, et al. v. California Teachers Association, et al. (2015) 135 S.Ct. 2933, a case in which the petitioners seek to persuade the Supreme Court to overturn Abood and invalidate agency shop arrangements in the public sector on First Amendment grounds. That case is on the docket for the Supreme Court's 2015 term. Unless and until the high court decides otherwise, however, Abood is the law of the land.<sup>14</sup> The "compulsory" nature of agency shop does not, under current law, violate the First Amendment.

The District's First Amendment argument is inconsistent with its position that a "full" agency shop covering both current employees and future hires would be acceptable. The First Amendment interest the District seeks to protect as it affects future hires is no different under modified agency shop than it is under full agency shop. Payment of an agency fee would be compulsory for future hires under either form of organizational security. It is the compulsory nature of the fee payment that lies at the heart of the First Amendment concern (Knox; Harris), not the scope of the particular agency shop arrangement determined by the exclusive representative to best suit its needs. As one court described the First Amendment infringement concern under United States Supreme Court authorities:

The distinction between permissible and impermissible union security devices is not measured by whether additional employees are compelled to pay fees to the union, but by whether those fees which employees are compelled to pay are used to subsidize only the union's collective bargaining activities or are additionally used to fund activities of the union that are political and ideological in nature.

<sup>14</sup> See also, Cumero v. PERB, supra, 49 Cal.3d 575 (the provisions for organizational security arrangements under the Educational Employment Relations Act, section 3540 et seq., prevail over nonmembers' more general right to refuse to participate in activities of employee organizations); Champion v. State of California (9th Cir. 1984) 738 F.2d 1082 (in a challenge to the constitutionality of the organizational security provision under the State Employer-Employee Relations Act (the Ralph C. Dills Act), section 3512 et seq., district court's denial of a motion for preliminary injunction seeking to restrain the deduction and collection of a portion of employees' wages as fair share fees was affirmed).

(Zorica, et al. v. AFSCME (Pa. Commw. Ct. 1996) 686 A.2d 461, 464.)

In sum, the petitioned-for modified agency shop raises no First Amendment concerns under Knox or Harris, as the District contends. The District's approval of full agency shop belies its First Amendment concern.

IV. The District's Standing

The District argues that the ALJ erred in concluding that the District lacks standing to assert the interests of bargaining unit employees who would be required to pay an agency fee under the petitioned-for modified agency shop. We agree with the ALJ.

Under the plain meaning of MMBA section 3502.5, the District has ultimate control over a finite number of matters. The District has the right not to use the SMCS in favor of a different, mutually agreed-to neutral. (§ 3502.5, subd. (b).) Under the statute's promulgating regulation, the District has the right to authorize the SMCS election supervisor to determine the time, place and manner of the election rather than seeking agreement with the exclusive representative over election mechanics. (PERB Reg. 32999.) The District has standing to assert these rights.

The District does not, however, have standing to contest the validity of the particular type of agency shop arrangement sought by the Association as a defense to an unfair practice charge alleging that it is refusing to participate in the election process.<sup>15</sup> To the extent of any

<sup>15</sup> Once an agency fee arrangement is placed into effect by agreement of the parties or by the results of an election under MMBA section 3502.5, public employees have the right to authorize that payroll deductions be made for this purpose (§ 3508.5, subd. (a)) and public agency employers "shall deduct the payment of dues or service fees to a recognized employee organization." (§ 3508.5, subd. (b), emphasis supplied.) Agency fee obligations, including payroll deductions made by the public agency employer "on behalf of the recognized employee organization, shall continue in effect as long as the employee organization is the recognized invalidity in the agency shop arrangement, as stated above, the bargaining unit employees' remedy against the exclusive representative is an agency fee challenge,<sup>16</sup> and the public agency employer's remedy is the statutory indemnification and hold harmless provision. The statutory and regulatory scheme adequately protects the interests of all parties – the public agency employer, the bargaining unit public employees and the recognized employee organization.

In support of its standing argument, the District states the following:

[T]he District has the authority under PERB Reg. 32999 to withhold consent from an election that is unlawful. For example, the District would be justified in withholding consent to an election for a modified agency shop which had the purpose of requiring the payment of union dues or agency fees to all future employees except women, African American, Hispanics, the physically handicapped, etc.

(Appeal, p. 54.)

In referring to “women, African American, Hispanics, the physically handicapped, etc.,” the District appears to be expressing a concern about the potential for discrimination by the exclusive representative against bargaining unit employees who belong to a class that enjoys protected status under anti-discrimination laws. There are at least two problems with this argument.

First, the District's argument is premised on a faulty notion. In the event a recognized employee organization were to memorialize in a petition for agency fees its intention to discriminate against bargaining unit employees on the basis of their membership in a protected bargaining representative, notwithstanding the expiration of” the parties' labor contract. (§ 3508.5, subd. (c), emphasis supplied.)

<sup>16</sup> Only an employee who pays an agency fee has standing to challenge the employee organizations' retention of that fee. (California Nurses Association (O'Malley) (2004) PERB Decision No. 1607-H.)

class, the California Legislature has provided the method for redress under the state's anti-discrimination laws. Under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), it is unlawful:

For a labor organization, because of the race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic information, marital status, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, age, sexual orientation, or military and veteran status of any person, to exclude, expel, or restrict from its membership the person, or to provide only second-class or segregated membership or to discriminate against any person because of the race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, physical disability, mental disability, medical condition, genetic information, marital status, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, age, sexual orientation, or military and veteran status of the person in the election of officers of the labor organization or in the selection of the labor organization's staff or to discriminate in any way against any of its members or against any employer or against any person employed by an employer.

(§ 12940, subd. (b).)<sup>17</sup>

Second, the District assumes that a recognized employee organization is prohibited from making distinctions amongst bargaining unit employees in its organizational security arrangements. While there is no PERB precedent on this point, there are countless private sector

Any person claiming to be aggrieved by an alleged unlawful practice may file with the department a verified complaint, in writing, that shall state the name and address of the person, employer, labor organization, or employment agency alleged to have committed the unlawful practice complained of, and that shall set forth the particulars thereof and contain other information as may be required by the department. The director or his or her authorized representative may in like manner, on his or her own motion, make, sign, and file a complaint.

The duty of fair representation also protects against racial classifications. (Steele v. Louisville (1944) 323 U.S. 192; see also fn. 19, post.) decisions and none supports the District's position.<sup>18</sup> In Actors' Equity Association (1980) 247 NLRB 1193 (Actors' Equity Assn.), enforced (2nd Cir. 1981) 644 F.2d 939, for example, the union imposed higher dues on a class of union members (including Lynn Redgrave and Yul Brynner) based on their country of citizenship and residence. The General Counsel for the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) argued that maintenance of the two-tiered dues structure in conjunction with the contractual union-security clause subjected a nonresident alien to discharge for nonpayment of dues other than dues "uniformly required" within the meaning of the proviso to section 8(a)(3)<sup>19</sup> of the NLRA. The General Counsel argued that such conduct established a per se violation of the NLRA to which there could be no defense as a matter of law, thereby making irrelevant the union's reasons for the maintenance of a dual dues structure. (Actors' Equity Assn., supra, 247 NLRB 1193, 1197.) The NLRB disagreed with the General Counsel, concluding that maintenance of a two-tiered dues structure was not a per se violation of the NLRA. The NLRB stated:

"Classifications based on alienage, like those based on nationality or race, are inherently suspect and subject to close judicial scrutiny." Implicit is that such classifications may be justified after close judicial scrutiny, and the object of scrutiny is to determine whether there is a legitimate interest to be served by discrimination based on alienage.

<sup>18</sup> When interpreting the MMBA, it is appropriate to take guidance from cases interpreting the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA), 29 U.S.C. § 151 et seq., and California labor relations statutes with parallel provisions. (Fire Fighters Union v. City of Vallejo (1974) 12 Cal.3d 608.)

<sup>19</sup> The requirement in section 8(a)(3) of the NLRA that dues be "uniformly required" does not mean that all members must be charged the same dues, but that distinctions between classes of members must be based on "reasonable general classification." (Actors' Equity Assn., supra, 247 NLRB 1193, 1196.)

The NLRB agreed with the General Counsel's alternate contention that the dues structure was presumptively invalid and that the union failed to meet its burden to show reasons for the discrimination and to show that the reasons were sufficient to overcome the strong expressions of policy against it. (Actors' Equity Assn., supra, 247 NLRB 1193, 1197 ["Discrimination based on alienage is inherently suspect, and rarely will it be possible to show that alienage has relevance to employment or any legitimate union or business interest."].) The question is not whether a union's dues structure differentiates between members on some protected basis. Such classifications are "inherently suspect," but may be justified if there is a legitimate interest to be served.

By this discussion, the Board does not conclude that this line of private sector precedent should necessarily be adopted as PERB precedent. Nor do we conclude that this line of precedent would even apply to a question concerning the validity of a proposed agency shop, rather than to a question concerning union dues structure. Nor do we suggest that "future hires" describes a protected class. This discussion of private sector precedent is merely intended to demonstrate that the District's standing argument rests on another faulty basis. The District assumes incorrectly that a union is prohibited from making distinctions amongst bargaining unit employees in union affairs.

The District may perceive a need to protect future bargaining unit employees from possible, but highly improbable, acts of invidious discrimination at the hands of their statutory bargaining representative. But the District's refusal to participate in a statutorily required election cannot be justified on that basis.<sup>20</sup>

<sup>20</sup> Bargaining unit employees, unlike public agency employees, do have standing to bring an unfair practice charge against the recognized employee organization for breach of the duty of fair representation. While the MMBA does not expressly impose a statutory duty of fair representation upon employee organizations, the courts have held that "unions owe a duty of fair representation to their members, and this requires them to refrain from representing their members arbitrarily, discriminatorily, or in bad faith." (Hussey v. Operating Engineers, Local Union No. 3 (1995) 35 Cal.App.4th 1213.) In Hussey, the court further held that a union is to

In its final argument on standing, the District relies on two cases. The first is County of Los Angeles v. Los Angeles County Employee Relations Commission (2013) 56 Cal.4th 905. The California Supreme Court held that the county's failure to disclose represented employees' contact information to the recognized employee organization violated the MMBA and that the privacy clause of the state constitution did not excuse the county from disclosing that information.

The District argues that if the county had standing to assert the privacy interest of bargaining unit employees in that case, the District also has standing to assert "the first amendment rights of current and future new hires in a modified agency shop." (Appeal, p. 57.) In making this argument, the District ignores a crucial difference between County of Los Angeles and this case. An employer has the duty to disclose information requested by the employee organization as part of its good faith bargaining obligation. The duty to bargain in good faith be "accorded wide latitude in the representation of its members, . . . absent a showing of arbitrary exercise of the union's power." Regarding its collective bargaining duty, as a general rule, an exclusive representative enjoys a wide range of bargaining latitude. As the United States Supreme Court stated in Ford Motor Co. v. Huffman (1953) 345 U.S. 330, 338:

Inevitably differences arise in the manner and degree to which the terms of any negotiated agreement affect individual employees and classes of employees. The mere existence of such differences does not make them invalid. The complete satisfaction of all who are represented is hardly to be expected. A wide range of reasonableness must be allowed a statutory bargaining representative in serving the unit it represents, subject always to complete good faith and honesty of purpose in the exercise of its discretion.

Acknowledging the need for such discretion, PERB determined that an exclusive representative is not expected or required to satisfy all members of the unit it represents. (California School Employees Association and its Chapter 107 (Chacon) (1995) PERB Decision No. 1108.) Moreover, the duty of fair representation does not mean an employee organization is barred from making an agreement which may have an unfavorable effect on some members, nor is an employee organization obligated to bargain a particular item benefiting certain unit members. (Ibid.; Los Rios College Federation of Teachers, CFT/AFT (Violet, et al.) (1991) PERB Decision No. 889.)

belongs to the employer and to the exclusive representative of the bargaining unit employees. The exclusive representative has the duty to represent the bargaining unit employees fairly. And, because the employer maintains the information requested, the employer has a direct interest in and responsibility for ensuring the propriety of disclosure in its role as the bargaining unit employees' employer. In carrying out their good faith bargaining duties, it is left to the employer and the exclusive representative to make decisions and take action on matters directly affecting the interests of bargaining unit employees.

In stark contrast, with election matters, it is left to bargaining unit employees to act on their own interests. They, and they alone, decide for themselves, by majority vote, representation questions, i.e., whether to seek exclusive representation by an employee organization, whether to seek decertification, etc. And, they, and they alone, decide for themselves whether to approve an agency shop where there is no mutual agreement. These are matters of employee free choice, not matters in which the public agency employer has a legitimate role to play in attempting to protect employee interests. The public agency employer's role in election matters is mainly ministerial in nature.

The second case on which the District relies in making its standing argument is Davenport, supra, 551 U.S. 177. The state of Washington litigated the matter in its role as defender of a voter initiative. The initiative enacted a law restricting a union's ability to spend the agency fees that it collects from nonmembers for election-related purposes without the nonmembers' affirmative consent. Reliance on this case is unfounded as it concerns the District's standing argument given that the state of Washington did not litigate the case in its capacity as a public employer. Therefore, we reject the District's attempt to use this case as support for its contention that public agency employers have standing to assert the interests of bargaining unit employees who would be required to pay an agency fee under the petitioned-for modified agency shop.

V. Agency Shop Includes Lesser Forms of Organizational Security

The District criticizes the proposed decision for its reliance on “inapposite authority” in concluding that the definition of agency shop is broad enough to include lesser forms of organizational security than “full” agency shop. The District’s criticism is misplaced. The District argues, for example, that the ALJ’s reliance on Public Service Company of Colorado (1950) 89 NLRB 418 was in error because that decision discusses a prior version of the relevant NLRA proviso, section 8(a)(3). As the District states, the amendment was intended to accomplish twin purposes. (NLRB v. General Motors Corp. (1963) 373 U.S. 734, 740 (General Motors Corp.)). The amendment abolished what was considered to be the most serious abuse of compulsory unionism, the closed shop. It also removed expulsion from union membership as a ground of compulsory discharge so long as there is no delinquency in paying the initiation fee or dues. (Id. at pp. 740-741.) The proposed decision relied on Public Service Company of Colorado, however, not for any principle relating to this amendment to section 8(a)(3), but, rather, for the principle that the NLRA does not prohibit forms of organizational security less restrictive than “full” union or agency shop.

In attempting to prove the ALJ’s analytical error, the District relies on the United States Supreme Court decision General Motors Corp., supra, 373 U.S. 734, which the District asserts stands for the proposition that under the amendment to section 8(a)(3) “all employees would be required to pay their way.” (Appeal, p. 43, emphasis supplied.) Not so. The correct quotation is: “As far as the federal law was concerned, all employees could be required to pay their way.” (General Motors Corp., supra, at p. 741, emphasis supplied.) The Supreme Court went on to say:

We find nothing in the legislative history of the Act indicating that Congress intended the amended proviso to § 8(a)(3) to validate only the union shop and simultaneously to abolish, in addition to the closed shop, all other union-security arrangements permissible under state law.

(Ibid.)

The District similarly argues that the proposed decision's reliance on The Steel Products Engineering Company (1956) 116 NLRB 811 is in error because the sole issue in that case concerned the failure of the organizational security clause to afford new employees a 30-day notice period as required under section 8(a)(3) of the NLRA. The point made by the ALJ, however, was that the union security clause was found to be unlawful, not because it was a modified union security clause that applied only to new employees, similar to the petitioned-for modified agency shop involved here, but because the notice period was too short.

CONCLUSION

The central premise of the District's appeal is that an agency shop arrangement is unlawful unless it applies to all bargaining unit members equally. For this, there is no authority.

Currently, there are a minority of employees who choose to ride free on the Association's efforts. In addition, dues-paying members who are current employees have the opportunity to drop their membership and stop paying dues. The system employees currently enjoy is a voluntary one. The Association has opted to pursue an organizational security arrangement that allows these employees to continue under the voluntary dues system currently in place.

Although expressed as a concern about free riders, the District's concern does not extend to free riders in a voluntary system. The District's apparent concern is about the introduction of a compulsory dues/fees system that only addresses the free rider problem prospectively. As discussed above and in the proposed decision, the “compulsory” nature of the petitioned-for modified agency shop poses no First Amendment problem so long as the fees of objecting nonmembers are not used for ideological purposes that are not germane to the Association’s collective bargaining duties (Abood, supra, 431 U.S. 209) and the Association follows the procedural requirements necessary to prevent the expenditure of fees for impermissible purposes (Hudson, supra, 475 U.S. 292).

The distinctions made in the petitioned-for modified agency shop between current bargaining unit employees and future hires only make for a less robust organizational security arrangement. The phrase “agency shop” as used in MMBA section 3502.5, however, is broad enough to encompass any compulsory dues/fees system regardless of which bargaining unit employees are covered. Agency shop is the public sector equivalent of union shop. Union or agency shop has been stripped down to only one requirement that may be compelled of bargaining unit employees, the payment of financial core fees to the union for the cost of performing the representational duties of an exclusive representative.<sup>21</sup> That a recognized employee organization chooses not to exercise this right to the fullest extent legally possible, as it could by proposing an organizational security arrangement that applies both to current employees and to future hires, does not constitute an employer defense to an unfair practice charge alleging a violation of MMBA section 3502.5:

<sup>21</sup> As the Ninth Circuit held in NLRB v. Hershey Foods Corp. (9th Cir. 1975) 513 F.2d 1083, 1087:

The union, of course, still has the right to prescribe its own rules for acquisition or retention of full membership. 29 U.S.C. § 158(b)(1)(A). But the employee need not become a full-fledged member of the Union to be protected from discharge. So long as an employee tenders fees uniformly required of union members, he is a “member” for purposes of sections 8(a)(3) and 8(b)(2).

For all the reasons discussed herein, we conclude that the District violated MMBA section 3502.5 by refusing to participate in the properly petitioned-for election.

ORDER

Upon the herein findings of fact and conclusions of law, and the entire record in the case, it is found that the Orange County Water District (District) violated the Meyer-Milias-Brown Act (MMBA), Government Code section 3502.5. The District violated the MMBA by refusing to participate in good faith in a properly petitioned-for agency fee election.

Pursuant to section 3509 of the Government Code, it hereby is ORDERED that the District, its governing board and its representatives shall:

A. CEASE AND DESIST FROM:

1. Refusing to participate in an agency shop election.

B. TAKE THE FOLLOWING AFFIRMATIVE ACTIONS DESIGNED TO EFFECTUATE THE POLICIES OF THE MMBA:

1. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of a final decision in this matter, either enter into a consent election agreement with the Orange County Water District Employees Association (Association) or authorize the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service (SMCS) to prepare a consent election agreement governing the mechanics of an agency shop election.

2. Provide to SMCS any documentation deemed by SMCS to be necessary for the conduct of an agency shop election, pursuant to Public Employment Relations Board (PERB or Board) Regulation 32999 et seq. (codified at Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, sec. 31001, et seq.), including but not limited to a list of names of all employees included in the voting unit as of the cutoff date for voter eligibility. (See PERB Reg. 33004.)

3. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of a final decision in this matter, post at all work locations where notices to employees in the Association customarily are posted, copies of the Notice attached hereto as an Appendix. The Notice must be signed by an authorized agent of the District, indicating that it will comply with the terms of this Order. Such posting shall be maintained for a period of thirty (30) consecutive workdays. Reasonable steps shall be taken to ensure that the Notice is not reduced in size, altered, defaced or covered with any other material. In addition to physical posting of paper notices, the Notice shall be posted by electronic message, intranet, internet site, and other electronic means customarily used by the District to communicate with its employees in the bargaining unit represented by the Association.

4. Written notification of the actions taken to comply with this Order shall be made to the General Counsel of PERB, or the General Counsel's designee. The District shall provide reports, in writing, as directed by the General Counsel or his/her designee. All reports regarding compliance with this Order shall be concurrently served on the Association and SMCS.

Members Winslow and Gregersen joined in this Decision.

NOTICE TO EMPLOYEES
POSTED BY ORDER OF THE
PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD
An Agency of the State of California

After a hearing in Unfair Practice Case No. LA-CE-856-M, Orange County Water District Employees Association v. Orange County Water District, in which all parties had the right to participate, it has been found that the Orange County Water District (District) violated the Meyers-Miliias-Brown Act (MMBA), Government Code section 3500 et seq. by failing and refusing to participate in good faith in a properly petitioned-for agency fee election by the Orange County Water District Employees Association (Association).

As a result of this conduct, we have been ordered to post this Notice and we will:

A. CEASE AND DESIST FROM:

Refusing to participate in properly petitioned-for agency fee elections.

B. TAKE THE FOLLOWING AFFIRMATIVE ACTIONS DESIGNED TO EFFECTUATE THE POLICIES OF THE MMBA:

1. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of final decision in this matter, either enter into a consent election agreement with the Association or authorize the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service (SMCS) to prepare a consent election agreement governing the mechanics of an agency shop election.

2. Provide to SMCS any documentation deemed by the organization to be necessary for the conduct of an agency shop election, pursuant to PERB Regulation 32999 et seq. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, sec. 31001, et seq.), including but not limited to a list of names of all employees including in the voting unit as of the cutoff date for voter eligibility. UNFAIR PRACTICE

PROPOSED DECISION
(February 26, 2015)

Appearances: Charles G. Barfield, Labor Relations Specialist, for Orange County Water District Employees Association; Rutan & Tucker, LLP, by George W. "Bill" Shaeffer, Jr., Attorney, for Orange County Water District.

Before Valerie Pike Racho, Administrative Law Judge.

This case presents the novel legal issue of whether Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (MMBA or Act)<sup>1</sup> section 3502.5 permits an employer to withhold its consent to conduct an election to determine whether employees desire to enact an agency shop arrangement applicable to employees hired on or after a certain date, but not applicable to current employees.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On July 3, 2013, the Orange County Water District Employees Association (Association) filed the above-referenced unfair practice charge (charge) with the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB or Board) alleging that the Orange County Water District (District) refused to participate in an agency shop election in violation of section 3502.5.

On August 5, 2013, the District filed a position statement in response to the charge.

On September 16, 2013, the PERB Office of the General Counsel issued a complaint (the complaint) against the District for failing and refusing to consent to an agency shop election conducted by SMCS or to provide information required by SMCS in order to determine the sufficiency of employee support in favor of an agency shop election.

On October 8, 2013, the District answered the complaint.

On October 22, 2013, an informal settlement conference was held but the matter was not resolved. The matter was then set for hearing.

On December 11, 2013, a telephonic pre-hearing conference was held to discuss the presentation of evidence. It was determined that no material facts were in dispute and the issue to be decided was purely a legal one; thus, the parties agreed to: (1) jointly submit a written stipulation of facts in lieu of holding an evidentiary hearing (see PERB Regulation 32207);<sup>2</sup> (2) file opening briefs; (3) present oral argument before me, the ALJ assigned by PERB to hear this matter; and (4) file closing briefs.

On December 16, 2013, the parties filed the stipulation of facts.

On January 16, 2014, the District filed its opening brief. Also on this date, the District submitted a Declaration and Request for Official Notice (First Request for Official Notice) of a number of documents that were compiled by the Legislative Intent Service relating to changes in the MMBA.

On January 21, 2014, the Association filed its opening brief.

On January 22, 2014, the parties presented oral argument at the PERB Los Angeles Regional Office. I granted the First Request for Official Notice without opposition from the Association.

On March 11, 2014, the parties filed closing briefs. Concurrent with its closing brief, the District submitted a Second Request for Official Notice of several federal district court orders. The record was closed and the case submitted for decision upon receipt of the filings on this date.<sup>3</sup>

JURISDICTION

In paragraphs 1 – 4 of the stipulation of facts, the parties stipulated that the District is a public agency within the meaning of the MMBA and that “the Orange County Water District Employee’s Association and the Orange County Employees Association (collectively referred to as ‘Association’)” is a recognized employee organization as defined by the Act.

FINDINGS OF FACT

The parties stipulated to the following additional facts:

5. Commencing on or about June 24, 2005, District and Association have been parties to Memoranda of Understandings [sic] (“MOU” and “MOUs”) and successor MOUs, which set forth various wages, hours and other terms and conditions of employment for the employees in the bargaining unit covered by the MOU.

6. The current term of the MOU between the District and the Association is July 1, 2013 to June 30, 2015.

7. In or about May of 2011, Association proposed a “modified agency shop” arrangement in the course of negotiations for a successor MOU which would exempt all current employees from the agency shop arrangement, and which would apply the agency shop arrangement on all new District employees hired on or after a future date. In or about July of 2012, Association requested to reopen the MOU to implement a “modified agency shop” arrangement, whereby current employees would be exempt from the agency shop arrangement, but the agency shop arrangement would apply to all new employees hired by the District on or after a future date. On both occasions, District rejected the modified agency shop arrangement on the ground that Government Code section 3502.5 does not authorize the creation of an agency shop agreement which exempts current employees from the agency shop arrangement, and which applies only to new employees hired on or after a future date.

8. On or about November 14, 2012, the Association served the District and the State Mediation and Conciliation Services (“SMCS”) with a Petition and Request for Agency Shop Election which stated, in part, that no management or confidential employees are included in the unit, and the petition has been signed by approximately 98 percent of the members of the unit.

9. At all times herein mentioned, the Petition, attached to the Request for Agency Shop Election, bears the signatures of 125 District employees in the bargaining unit.

10. At all times herein relevant, the Petition for Modified Agency Shop Election attached to the Request for Agency Shop Election states as follows:
We, the undersigned employees of the Orange County Water District represented by the Orange County Employees Association, hereby request a Modified Agency Shop Agreement and an election to implement an Agency Fee Arrangement pursuant to California Government Code section 3502.5 and other applicable laws or regulations. Pursuant to Modified Agency Shop Agreement and Arrangement, all employees hired on or after March 1, 2013, will be required to join as members the Orange County Employees Association or pay to the Orange County Employees Association a “service fee” as set forth in Government code section 3502.5(a), et seq. All employees hired prior to March 1, 2013 are specifically excluded from the Modified Agency Shop Agreement and Arrangement.

11. At all times herein relevant, the total number of employees in the bargaining unit represented by Association is 184, of which 126 are dues paying members of the Association.

12. On or about December 4, 2012, Stephanie Dosier, the District’s Director of Human Resources, received an e-mail from Jerry Fecher, Mediator, State of California,

State Mediation & Conciliation Service, confirming receipt of a request for agency shop election from the Association. Mr. Fecher requested a meeting to discuss the logistics and set up of an election. December 12 and 14, 2012, were proposed as possible dates for such a meeting.

13. District's legal counsel responded to Mr. Fecher on December 7, 2012 requesting a postponement of the meeting until SMCS verified its ability to conduct a modified agency shop election under Government Code section 3502.5(a). [Sic.]

14. On or about December 12, 2012, Mr. Fecher responded to the parties by stating that the MMBA does not authorize the SMCS to rule on the legality of a proposed agency fee arrangement. Nevertheless, if the parties are ready and in agreement to proceed, SMCS is available, if necessary, to check the level of support in the petition and/or to subsequent conduct an election. [Sic.]

15. On or about January 3, 2013, after receiving further direction from the District's governing board, District's Legal Counsel informed Mr. Fecher of SMCS that the District would not voluntarily consent to a modified agency shop election which has the intention of creating an agency shop only for employees hired on or after March 1, 2013, and which exempts all current bargaining unit employees. The District reconfirmed its contention that an agency shop can only apply to all employees in the unit, and it cannot be limited to employees hired after a future date.

16. On or about July 3, 2013, Association timely filed an unfair practice charge from the District's denial of the Association's Petition for a Modified Agency Shop election as described above.

ISSUE

The question presented by the complaint is whether the District violated section 3502.5, and thereby committed an unfair practice under section 3509 and PERB Regulation 32603, subdivision (g), when it refused to participate in an agency shop<sup>4</sup> election conducted by SMCS, or to provide information required by SMCS in order to determine the sufficiency of employee support.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

I. Official Notice

PERB regulations do not specifically address the taking of official notice. With regard to the propriety of an ALJ's taking of official notice, the Board has applied the standards for the taking of judicial notice in a California court of law. (City of Alhambra (2010) PERB Decision No. 2139-M.) The taking of judicial notice is governed by California Evidence Code sections 451 and 452. (Santa Clara County Superior Court (2014) PERB Decision No. 2394-C.)<sup>5</sup>

Evidence Code section 451 provides for the mandatory judicial notice of (1) The United States and California Constitutions; (2) California City and County charters; (3) federal and California decisional law; (4) the regulations of federal and California agencies; (5) federal and California rules of pleading, practice and procedure; (6) the signification of English words and phrases; and (7) universally known facts.

Evidence Code section 452 provides for the optional judicial notice of: (1) the laws of another state or territory in the United States; (2) the resolutions and private acts of the United States Congress or California Legislature; (3) regulations and ordinances issued under federal <sup>4</sup> The MMBA makes specific reference to "agency shop" agreements and arrangements. PERB regulation 32990 adopts the phrase, "agency fee" to describe any form of organizational security that might otherwise be termed "fair share" or "agency shop." I have adopted the use of the phrase "agency shop" throughout this document for consistency, with the understanding that all three phrases make reference to the same form of union security.

<sup>5</sup> When interpreting the MMBA, it is appropriate to take guidance from cases interpreting the National Labor Relations Act and California labor relations statutes with parallel provisions. (Fire Fighters Union v. City of Vallejo (1974) 12 Cal.3d 608.)

authority or any public entity in the United States; (4) official acts of one of the branches of the federal government or any state government in the United States; (5) Court records of any California court, federal court or any state court in the United States; (6) foreign law; and (7) commonly known or readily determinable facts.

PERB has a longstanding practice of considering legislative history to aid it in interpreting the statutes it administers. (See, e.g., State of California (Department of Personnel Administration) (2009) PERB Decision No. 2017-S; City & County of San Francisco (2009) PERB Decision No. 2041-M.) A legislative committee analysis is not factual, evidentiary material, but is relevant, publicly available information that was considered by the Legislature in enacting a statute.

The First Request for Official Notice regarding legislative history materials was granted on the record without opposition from the Association. The Association did not state a position regarding the Second Request for Official Notice. Because that request is entirely over federal decisional law, a mandatory subject of notice under Evidence Code section 451, it is also granted.

II. Agency Shop Elections Under The MMBA

PERB's powers to enforce the MMBA include the authority to "order elections, to conduct any election the board orders, and to adopt rules to apply in areas where a public agency has no rule." (Gov. Code, § 3509, subd. (a).) Furthermore, "a complaint alleging any violation of this chapter . . . shall be processed as an unfair practice charge by the board." (Gov. Code, § 3509, subd. (b).) It is PERB's role to protect employees' statutory rights to decide whether to implement or rescind agency fee arrangements. (See State of California (Department of Personnel Administration) (1986) PERB Order No. Ad-156-S.) Agency shop is defined as:

an arrangement that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized employee organization or to pay the organization a service fee in an amount not to exceed the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of the organization.

(MMBA, § 3502.5, subd. (a).)

Section 3502.5, subdivision (b), states:

In addition to the procedure prescribed in subdivision (a),<sup>6</sup> an agency shop arrangement between the public agency and a recognized employee organization that has been recognized as the exclusive or majority bargaining agent shall be placed in effect, without a negotiated agreement, upon (1) a signed petition of 30 percent of the employees in the applicable bargaining unit requesting an agency shop agreement and an election to implement an agency fee arrangement, and (2) the approval of a majority of employees who cast ballots and vote in a secret ballot election in favor of the agency shop agreement. The petition may be filed only after the recognized employee organization has requested the public agency to negotiate on an agency shop arrangement and, beginning seven working days after the public agency received this request, the two parties have had 30 calendar days to attempt good faith negotiations in an effort to reach agreement. An election that may not be held more frequently than once a year shall be conducted by the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service [SMCS] in the event that the public agency and the recognized employee organization cannot agree within 10 days from the filing of the petition to select jointly a neutral person or entity to conduct the election. In the event of an agency fee arrangement outside of an agreement that is in effect, the recognized employee organization shall indemnify and hold the public agency harmless against any liability arising from a claim, demand, or other action relating to the public agency's compliance with the agency fee obligation.

Although an agency shop agreement does not require bargaining unit members to join the union, as is the case in the private sector with so-called "union shop" agreements, the court also acknowledges that the agency shop in the public sector is the practical equivalent of the union shop in the private sector. (City of Hayward v. United Public Employees, Local 390, SEIU (1976) 54 Cal.App.3d 761, 768; Rae v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Supervisory and Professional Assn. (1980) 114 Cal.App.3d 147, 153.)

<sup>6</sup> Section 3502.5, subdivision (a), provides in relevant part that "an agency shop agreement may be negotiated between a public agency and...a...recognized...exclusive or majority bargaining agent...."

Agency shop agreements are within the scope of representation (Rae v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Supervisory and Professional Assn., supra, 114 Cal.App.3d 147, 152-153) and the statutes administered by PERB either explicitly permit the employer and the exclusive representative to include an agency shop agreement in their collective bargaining agreement (see Gov. Code, §§ 3502.5, subd. (a); 3515.7, subd. (a); 71632, subd. (a); 71814, subd. (a); and 110019, subd. (a)), or provide that such fees shall be immediately deducted by the employer upon notice from the exclusive representative. (See Gov. Code, §§ 3546, subd. (a); 3583.5, subd. (a)(1); and Pub. Util. Code, § 99566.)

When parties fail to agree to contractual agency fee language, the labor statutes administered by PERB typically resolve the issue by putting it to a secret ballot vote of the affected employees, as is the case under the MMBA, Trial Court Employment Protection and Governance Act, Trial Court Interpreter Employment and Labor Relations Act, and In-Home Supportive Services Employer-Employee Relations Act.<sup>7</sup> (See Gov. Code, §§ 3502.5, subd. (b), 71632.5, subd. (c), 71814, subd. (c), 110019, subd. (b), respectively.) All of the statutes provide a mechanism to rescind an agency fee agreement by secret ballot vote of affected bargaining unit employees. (See Gov. Code, §§ 3502.5, subd. (d), 3515.7, subd. (d), 3546, subd. (d), 3583.5, subd. (c), 71632, subd. (b), 71814, subd. (b), 110019, subd. (d); and Pub. Util. Code, § 99566.1, subd. (d).)

<sup>7</sup> The Ralph C. Dills Act provides that the state employer and a recognized employee organization “may enter into an agreement” for organizational security. There is no election procedure. (See Gov. Code, § 3515.7, subd. (a).)

A. A Brief History of The Right To Agency Shop Under MMBA

The MMBA did not always contain language explicitly authorizing agency shop agreements. Before 1976, many public agencies voluntarily entered into agency shop agreements, though the MMBA was silent on the issue. (Assem. Com. on Public Employees and Retirement, Background, Assem. Bill No. 1693 (1981-1982 Reg. Sess.)) In City of Hayward v. United Public Employees, Local 390, Service Employees International Union (1976) 54 Cal.App.3d 761 (City of Hayward), the court stressed that public employees only enjoy those collective bargaining rights granted by statute and there is no common law right of public employees to bargain collectively. The court noted that the agency shop was authorized explicitly by the language of the Educational Employment Relations Act (EERA) but not by the MMBA. Owing to this difference, the court reasoned that the MMBA did not authorize the parties to enter into agency shop agreements. When City of Hayward was decided in 1976, EERA section 3546, subdivision (a),<sup>8</sup> stated:

An organizational security arrangement, in order to be effective, must be agreed upon by both parties to the agreement. At the time the issue is being negotiated, the public school employer may require that the organizational security provision be severed from the remainder of the proposed agreement and cause the organizational security provision to be voted upon separately by all members in the appropriate negotiating unit, in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the board. Upon such a vote, the organizational security provision will become effective only if a majority of those members of the negotiating unit voting approve the agreement. Such vote shall not be deemed to either ratify or defeat the remaining provision of the proposed agreement.

<sup>8</sup> In 2000, the Legislature amended EERA section 3546 to require an employer to implement an agency fee arrangement upon the demand of an exclusive employee organization, and to eliminate the requirement of an election for the initial adoption of an agency fee arrangement. The analysis of the Senate Committee on Education states, "This bill has the effect of circumventing the collective bargaining process by directly imposing agency shop fees rather than allowing them to be bargained and then submitting the provisions to the employees for a vote." (Sen. Com. on Education, Rep. on Sen. Bill No. 1960 (1999-2000 Reg. Sess.) as amended April 12, 2000, p. 2.)

In a subsequent decision holding that an agency shop election under EERA should be determined by a simple majority, dissenting Board member Alleyne noted that, under the above-quoted language, an organizational security vote was called at the option of the employer, and the employer's exercise of the option not to call an organizational security vote was tantamount to a rejection of a negotiated organizational security clause. (Oceanside Unified School District (1977) EERB Order No. Ad-20, dissent pp. 6-7.)

The above-quoted language in EERA section 3546 was in effect when, in 1981, the Legislature amended the MMBA to include section 3502.5. As originally adopted, section 3502.5 authorized the parties to include an agency shop agreement in their contracts, and specified that agency shop agreements were a mandatory subject of negotiations. The language of the newly-adopted section 3502.5 was still in marked contrast to the language contained in the EERA, however.

Despite the fact that the language in EERA may have been the impetus for amending the MMBA, when it did so, the Legislature did not adopt the same language used in EERA. Instead of adopting the same language used in EERA, the Legislature amended the MMBA to include the following language at section 3502.5:

(a) Notwithstanding Section 3502, or any other provision of this chapter, or any other law, rule, or regulation, an agency shop agreement may be negotiated between a public agency and a recognized public employee organization which has been recognized as the exclusive or majority bargaining agent pursuant to reasonable rules and regulations, ordinances, and enactments, in accordance with this chapter. As used in this chapter, "agency shop" means an arrangement that requires an employee, as a condition of continued employment, either to join the recognized employee organization, or to pay the organization a service fee in an amount not to exceed the standard initiation fee, periodic dues, and general assessments of such organization for the duration of the agreement, or a period of three years from the effective date of such agreement, whichever comes first. However, any employee who is a member of a bona fide religion, body, or sect which has historically held conscientious objections to joining or financially supporting public employee organizations shall not be required to join or financially support any public employee organization as a condition of employment. Such employee may be required, in lieu of periodic dues, initiation fees, or agency shop fees, to pay sums equal to such dues, initiation fees, or agency shop fees to a nonreligious, nonlabor charitable fund exempt from taxation under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code, chosen by such employee from a list of at least three such funds, designated in a memorandum of understanding between the public agency and the public employee organization, or if the memorandum of understanding fails to designate such funds, then to any such fund chosen by the employee. Proof of such payments shall be made on a monthly basis to the public agency as a condition of continued exemption from the requirement of financial support to the public employee organization.

(b) An agency shop provision in a memorandum of understanding which is in effect may be rescinded by a majority vote of all the employees in the unit covered by such memorandum of understanding, provided that: (1) a request for such a vote is supported by a petition containing the signatures of at least 30 percent of the employees in the unit; (2) such vote is by secret ballot; (3) such vote may be taken at anytime during the term of such memorandum of understanding but in no event shall there be more than one vote taken during such term. Notwithstanding the above, the public agency and the recognized employee organization may negotiate, and by mutual agreement provide for, an alternative procedure or procedures regarding a vote on an agency shop agreement.

(c) An agency shop agreement shall not apply to management, confidential, or supervisory employees.

(d) Every recognized employee organization which has agreed to an agency shop provision shall keep an adequate itemized record of its financial transactions and shall make available annually, to the public agency with which the agency shop provision was negotiated, and the employees who are members of the organization, within 60 days after the end of its fiscal year, a detailed written financial report thereof in the form of a balance sheet and an operating statement, certified as to accuracy by its president and treasurer or corresponding principal officer, or by a certified public accountant. An employee organization required to file financial reports under the Labor-Management Disclosure Act of 1959 covering employees governed by this chapter, or required to file financial reports under Section 3546.5, may satisfy the financial reporting requirement of this section by providing the public agency with a copy of such financial reports.

Thus, when the Legislature first authorized agency shop agreements under the MMBA, agency shop could only be adopted by the mutual consent of the parties. The right to cause an election to determine whether an agency shop arrangement should be implemented was not granted under the MMBA until 2000, when the Legislature adopted Senate Bill 739, which contains the current language at section 3502.5 authorizing both a negotiated agency shop agreement as well as a secret ballot election at the option of the employee organization.

Prior to its adoption, both the arguments in support of and in opposition to Senate Bill 739 stress that the bill reduces the amount of control the public agency employer has over whether an agency shop would apply. The arguments in support of the bill were:

1. Some public agency employers unfairly withhold or refuse agreement on agency fee arrangements despite a significant interest demonstrated by employees.
2. The existing MMBA provisions are said to provide employers with an unfair veto authority over such arrangements.
3. This bill provides employees with an alternative process to obtain an agency fee agreement through a fair, democratic process.

(Sen. Rules Com. Off. of Sen. Floor Analyses' reading analysis of Sen. Bill No. 739, (1999-2000 Reg. Sess.)) Arguments in opposition to the bill were:

[S]B 730 [sic] undermines the basic justification for a collective bargaining law by mandating a significant union security agreement without any requirement for local collective bargaining regarding implementation of the benefit....The collective impact of these proposed changes would be to delete a significant element of control by a board of supervisors over the terms and conditions of employment of its employees.”

(Ibid.; emphasis added.) Clearly, the Legislature understood at the time that it enacted the current version of 3502.5 that doing so would drastically reduce the amount of control that the public agency employer was able to exert to prevent an agency shop arrangement from going into effect.

B. MMBA Agency Shop Elections Today

Turning to the current language in section 3502.5, there are several conditions precedent that must be met by the majority bargaining agent before an agency shop election is held. First, the employee organization must have attempted in good faith to include an agency fee agreement in the parties’ contract. Only after such a good faith attempt is made, the employee organization may submit a petition containing the signatures of no fewer than 30 percent of the employees in the bargaining unit, requesting a secret ballot election to adopt an agency fee arrangement. An election is held after these conditions precedent have been satisfied.

In 2013, pursuant to its authority under section 3509, PERB adopted Regulations 32999-33012 governing the mechanics of an agency shop election conducted by SMCS. By operation of the language empowering PERB to make rules, the regulations must be enacted and construed in conformity with the provisions, purposes and policies of the Act, and must be enacted in harmony with the statutes that create and empower the agency issuing the regulations. (Santa Clarita Community College District (College of the Canyons) (2003) PERB Decision No. 1506.) Thus, the parties’ substantive rights are determined by statute, and the regulations merely assist in the realization of those rights.

When PERB adopted Regulation 32999,<sup>9</sup> its rationale was to provide clarity regarding the election services that SMCS would provide “whenever [it] conducts representation and agency shop elections pursuant to the local rules of an MMBA . . . employer . . .” as well as that the section was “necessary for consistency with existing PERB Regulation 32724, which similarly provides for PERB to conduct elections pursuant to a Consent Election Agreement.” (Cal. Public Employment Relations Bd., Initial Statement of Reasons (July 12, 2013), p. 1.) PERB also stated that “such elections would be conducted by SMCS only pursuant to a Consent Election Agreement.” (Ibid.)

When parties to a PERB-conducted election cannot agree to the terms of a consent election agreement (CEA), PERB will issue a directed election order (DEO), dictating the time, place and manner of a representation election. (PERB Regulation 32724.) The two documents—CEA and DEO—ultimately accomplish the same thing: they establish the mechanics of the election with regard to the time, place, and manner in which ballots are printed, distributed, collected, and tallied. Furthermore, once the parties agree to the terms of an election in a CEA, they are not free to unilaterally rescind the CEA and thereby prevent the election from occurring. (See State of California (Department of Personnel Administration)

(a) The provisions of this Article are applicable whenever SMCS conducts representation and agency shop elections pursuant to the local rules of an MMBA, Trial Court Act, or Court Interpreter Act employer.

(b) SMCS shall conduct such elections only pursuant to a Consent Election Agreement entered into by all parties and SMCS. The term “Consent Election Agreement” means either an agreement by the parties as to the time, place and manner of an election, or an agreement by the parties that authorizes the election supervisor assigned by SMCS to determine the time, place and manner of the election.

(1991) PERB Order No. Ad-221-S; State of California (Department of Personnel Administration) (1986) PERB Order No. Ad-156-S; Tamalpais Union High School District (1976) EERB Decision No. 1<sup>10</sup>.) Nor may the parties challenge an order regarding the mechanics of an election through the Board's appeal process. (State of California (Department of Personnel Administration) (1993) PERB Order No. Ad-246-S.)

In contrast to the manner in which elections are conducted by PERB under its related regulations, there is no authority for SMCS to issue a DEO when the parties are unable to reach a CEA. When SMCS conducts an election, the regulations require the parties to agree either to the terms of a CEA or to permitting SMCS to establish the terms of the election. In both circumstances, a document titled "CEA" results, which dictates election procedures. There is no functional difference between a CEA that has been determined by the SMCS supervisor on the one hand and a DEO that is determined by a Board agent on the other. In both circumstances, once the right to an election has been determined, the mechanics of the election must be established by agreement or delegated to the neutral entity responsible for ensuring the election is fairly conducted. Decisions involving the mechanics of an election are neither discretionary nor appealable. (See PERB Regulation 32380; State of California (Department of Personnel Administration), supra, PERB Order No. Ad-246-S; State of California (Department of Personnel Administration), supra, PERB Order No. Ad-221-S; State of California (Department of Personnel Administration) (1986) PERB Order No. Ad-156-S; and Tamalpais Union High School District, supra, EERB Decision No. 1.)

In Oakland Unified School District (1980) PERB Order No. Ad-84, the Board recognized that PERB regulations governing the mechanics of an election do not permit a regional director who is charged with conducting the election to deviate from the regulations or to allow the parties to deviate from the regulations. Indeed, PERB's role in an election pursuant to a CEA is "ministerial as a matter of convenience to the parties." (Los Angeles Unified School District (1980) PERB Decision No. 113, p. 3.)

A ministerial act is "one which a public officer is required to perform upon a given state of facts in a prescribed manner in obedience to the mandate of legal authority and without regard to his own judgment or opinion concerning the propriety or impropriety of the act to be performed." (Williams v. City of Stockton (1925) 195 Cal. 743, 748.) Whether a statute imposes a ministerial duty or a mere obligation to perform a discretionary function is a question of statutory interpretation. (Mooney v. Garcia (2012) 207 Cal.App.4th 229, 233.) To be ministerial, a decision must be one the administrative agency itself is forced to follow. It must be a standard fixed by statute or ordinance or the enactment of some other legislative body. It cannot be a standard the administrative agency itself exercised its own discretion to create and therefore which it possesses the discretion to modify or ignore ....

(Friends of Westwood v. City of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal.App.3d 259, 278.)

As noted above, the right to an agency shop election is established by statute. PERB's regulations, therefore, must be interpreted in a manner that is in harmony with the statute. When interpreting administrative regulations, it is appropriate to apply the rules of statutory construction. (Organization of Deputy Sheriffs of San Mateo County v. County of San Mateo (1975) 48 Cal.App.3d 331, 341; State of California (Department of Personnel Administration), supra, PERB Order No. Ad-246-S.) Statutes and regulations should be construed in harmony with other statutes and regulations on the same general subject, with reference to the whole system of which it is a part so that all may be harmonized and have effect. (Building Material

& Construction Teamsters Union, Local 216 v. Farrell (1986) 41 Cal.3d 651, 665; and Joint Powers Board of Directors, Tulare County Organization for Vocational Education, Regional Occupational Center and Program (1978) PERB Decision No. 57.) New regulations adopted by the Board are assumed to incorporate precedent. (California Nurses Association (O'Malley) (2003) PERB Decision No. 1578-M.) Use of the word “shall” in a statute or regulation normally imports that its provisions are mandatory in nature. (Los Angeles Unified School District (1990) PERB Decision No. 852, p. 5, citations omitted.)

Unlike PERB, SMCS does not have the authority to enforce the MMBA or the regulations adopted pursuant to the MMBA. Instead, SMCS may only conduct an election that the parties place before it. Given the similarities between the CEA created under PERB Regulation 32999, subdivision (b), and the DEO authorized by PERB Regulation 32724, the title of DEO or CEA on the document governing the manner in which an election is conducted appears to be a distinction without a difference. Notably, PERB Regulation 32724 describes both a CEA and a DEO in the same section. Furthermore, as the function served by SMCS in an agency shop election mirrors that of a regional director during representation elections, and given the mandatory language in section 3502.5, subdivision (b), that SMCS shall conduct an election if no other neutral entity is chosen, it is not clear that SMCS has discretion to refuse to perform the functions of an election supervisor and fail to issue a CEA.

C. The Parties' Rights And Duties Pursuant To An Agency Shop Election

Based on its interpretation of PERB Regulation 32999, the District argues that its participation in an agency shop election is voluntary, as it must by definition “consent” to an election. There are several problems with the District’s argument. First, PERB Regulations may not be interpreted in a manner that contradicts the statute. Thus, since section 3502.5, subdivision (b), grants an employee organization the right, upon the completion of certain conditions, to submit to employee vote whether an agency shop provision shall be implemented, PERB regulations may not be interpreted in a manner that would deny an employee organization its statutory rights.

Section 3502.5 lists the conditions precedent that must be met before an agency shop election is held, and as noted above, those conditions have been met in this case. The statute mandates that an agency shop arrangement shall be placed in effect without a negotiated agreement after an election which shall be conducted by SMCS if no alternate neutral entity is chosen by the parties. Accordingly, an agency shop election is in order in this case, and the failure of the parties to designate a neutral entity other than SMCS must be interpreted as the parties' de facto consent to the authority of SMCS over the election.

In arguing that section 3502.5, subdivision (b), requires the employer's consent to the election, the District relies not on statutory language, but on PERB regulations. Citing to PERB Regulation 32999, the District argues that agency shop elections are conducted only by the mutual consent of both parties as evidenced by the proviso that elections be conducted only pursuant to a CEA. In essence, the District argues that it may lawfully prevent an agency shop election by refusing to participate in the SMCS process to determine the time, place and manner of the election. If true, this would defeat the entire purpose for which Senate Bill 739 was adopted—to eliminate the employer's ability to unilaterally prevent the conduct of an agency shop election. Such an interpretation eviscerates the statutory right of an employee organization to permit employees to choose whether to enact an agency shop. On this basis alone, the District's interpretation of PERB regulations must be rejected.

The MMBA states that, if the parties fail to include an agency shop agreement after good faith negotiations, an agency shop arrangement shall be placed in effect after an election has been held in which the plan has been approved by majority vote. The requirements of the MMBA and PERB regulations are fixed and the District is not at liberty to exercise its own discretion to decide whether, assuming all the prerequisites have been met, it will submit to an election. The extent of the employer's discretion under the statute regarding agency shop elections is some input over the selection of an election supervisor other than SMCS, but even that discretion may not be exercised unilaterally. If the parties forgo the opportunity to mutually select an alternative to SMCS, as they have done here, SMCS shall conduct an election. (MMBA, § 3502.5 subd. (b).)

Second, the CEA governs only the mechanics of the election, and “withholding” its “consent” to the mechanics of an election serves no purpose other than to delay the operation of the election. Entering into a CEA with the Association does not force the District to forgo any right to challenge the outcome of the election or the substantive provisions in the proposed modified agency shop arrangement. Concerns regarding employee eligibility to vote in a particular election may be addressed by making challenges to eligibility at a point prior to the opening of the ballots (PERB Regulation 33005-33006, 33008.) Objections concerning the conduct of the election may be made within 10 days of the tally of ballots. (PERB Regulation 33009.) Concerns that either party engaged in conduct that would so affect the election process that the employees may be prevented from exercising free choice are addressed through the unfair practice charge process and may be grounds to stay an election pending the resolution of the unfair practice charge. (PERB Regulation 33002.) Thus, the regulations contain procedures for making substantive challenges to an election.

Finally, it is an unfair practice for an employee organization to cause or attempt to cause a public agency to engage in conduct prohibited by the MMBA. (PERB Regulation 32604, subd. (g).) If the District desired a resolution to the question whether a modified agency shop arrangement was lawful under the act, it could have filed an unfair practice charge alleging that the Association was attempting to cause the District to violate the Act by inducing it to participate in an unlawful agency shop arrangement. The District did not take affirmative steps to resolve this issue, instead preventing the election from occurring and forcing the Association to file a charge against the District in order to obtain a ruling.

In conclusion, I find that neither the statute nor the regulations permit the parties the discretion to refuse to participate in the mechanics of the election. Instead of granting SMCS the use of an enforcement tool, the statute and associated regulations place the onus on the parties: they may choose to have SMCS conduct the election, and, once all the prerequisites to that election have been established, the parties must either set the mechanics of the election by mutual agreement or permit SMCS to do so. The fact that SMCS lacks the authority to issue a document titled, "Directed Election Order" does nothing to diminish the parties' mutual duty to participate in the election process.

As concluded above, section 3502.5 requires the parties to participate in good faith in the election proceedings, when the conditions precedent have been met. In this case, the parties' stipulated facts assert that the conditions precedent to an agency shop election have been met. The parties forwent an opportunity to select an alternate election supervisor, thus designating SMCS the default election supervisor. Also noted above, the parties had a duty to either enter into a CEA or authorize SMCS to issue a CEA on behalf of all parties. Absent a valid defense, the District's failure to exercise its discretion to request a neutral election supervisor other than SMCS or authorize SMCS to issue a CEA is a per se violation of its good faith duty to participate in an agency shop election under section 3502.5.

III. Defenses

In defense of its refusal to participate in the agency shop election, the District argues that the Association's proposal is unlawful because it violates the First Amendment of the United States Constitution and because it does not fit the statutory definition of an agency shop agreement. The District further argues that the indemnification clause in section 3502.5, subdivision (b), is, in practical terms, inadequate protection from employer liability over agency fee litigation. Each of these arguments is addressed below.

A. The Proposed Modified Agency Shop Is Not Unlawful Under Current First Amendment Jurisprudence

In Abood v. Detroit Board of Education (1977) 431 U.S. 209 (Abood), the United States Supreme Court found that “[t]he governmental interests advanced by the agency-shop provision in the [public sector] are much the same as those promoted by similar provision in [private sector] labor law.” (Id. at p. 224.) The Court went on to state that “[t]he desirability of labor peace is no less important in the public sector, nor is the risk of ‘free riders’ any smaller.” (Ibid.) Ultimately, the Court found that the affected employees’ First Amendment rights were impermissibly intruded upon only when the dues collected were used for political purposes.

In adjudicating the constitutionality of the Michigan statute authorizing agency shop agreements in public sector employment, the Court stated,

[i]nsofar as the service charge is used to finance expenditures by the union for the purposes of collective bargaining, contract administration, and grievance adjustment, . . . decisions of this Court appear to require validation of the agency-shop agreement before us.

(Abood, supra, 431 U.S. at p. 226.)

In subsequent decisions, the Court has acknowledged that while union security arrangements pose a “significant burdening of First Amendment rights,” public employees may nevertheless be constitutionally compelled to affiliate with a union, so long as they are not compelled to participate in purely ideological activities that do not relate to their collective bargaining agreement. (Lehnert v. Ferris Faculty Assoc. (1991) 500 U.S. 507, 518; see also Davenport v. Washington Education Assoc. (2007) 551 U.S. 177.)

Recently, the Court has been critical of public sector agency shop arrangements, but has specifically declined the opportunity to find them unconstitutional. In Diane Knox et al. v. Service Employees International Union, Local 1000 (2012) 132 S.Ct. 2277 (Knox), the Court held unlawful a union's special assessment of increased agency fees during a statewide partisan election without having issued a second Hudson<sup>11</sup> notice to non-member fee payers. The Court noted that the "primary" purpose of permitting public sector unions to compel fees from non-members is to prevent non-members from "free-riding" on the union's efforts; thus benefitting from those efforts without sharing the costs, and that the justification for such a scheme is the promotion of "labor peace," which is an "anomaly" in the context of First Amendment analysis. (Knox, supra, 132 S.Ct at pp. 2289-2290.) The Court recognized that such compelled speech and association is a significant impingement on First Amendment rights: "Our cases to date have tolerated this 'impingement,' and we do not revisit today whether the Court's former cases have given adequate recognition to the critical First Amendment rights at stake." (Id. at p. 2289, italics in original; underscore added.)

In Pamela Harris, et al. v. Pat Quinn, Governor of Illinois, et al. (2014) 134 S.Ct. 2618 (Harris), the Court found that in-home support service providers were not public employees within the meaning of the Illinois public-sector collective bargaining statute, and therefore, non-members could not be compelled to remit fees to the union. Building on reservations expressed in the Knox case regarding adequate First Amendment protections, the Court in Harris was sharply critical of Abood and subsequent cases permitting agency shop

arrangements in public sector employment. (Harris, supra, 134 S.Ct at pp. 2630-2634.)

However, the Court in Harris specifically declined to extend Abood to the employees at issue based upon its findings over their employment status, and thus refused to reach the issue of whether Abood should be overturned: “It is therefore unnecessary for us to reach petitioners’ argument that Abood should be overruled, and the dissent’s extended discussion of stare decisis is beside the point.” (Harris, supra, 134 S.Ct at p. 2638, fn. 19; italics in original.)

The Court’s typical focus when reviewing agency shop agreements on constitutional grounds is the purpose to which the compulsory dues are put. The facts of this case do not raise any concern regarding the nature of the Association’s expenses as being either chargeable to collective bargaining purposes or non-chargeable because of political uses. Accordingly, the District’s First Amendment concerns are misplaced.<sup>12</sup> Moreover, the District’s argument that Knox prohibits the agency shop arrangement at issue here is entirely unsupported. Neither Knox nor Harris stand for the proposition that public agency shop arrangements in public sector employment are unconstitutional. Rather, the holdings in those cases are limited to the specific facts before the Court in each of them regarding special fee assessments without proper notice and the type of employees subjected to public sector collective bargaining laws. Neither case made even remote reference to the issue presented here regarding an agency shop applying only to future hires. Therefore, they have no impact on this analysis. The District’s First Amendment arguments are accordingly rejected.

<sup>12</sup> Additionally, as seen in each case discussed herein, such concerns are properly raised by employees subject to the fees, not by employers. The District has presented no authority suggesting that it has standing to mount a First Amendment challenge on behalf of its employees.

B. The Definition of Agency Shop Is Inclusive

The District argues that the statutory definition of an agency shop agreement requires that all the members of a particular bargaining unit either become union members or pay their fair share. In the present case, where the Association seeks to exclude certain bargaining unit members from the requirement to either become a member of the Association or pay a fair share fee, the District argues that the arrangement no longer fits the description of an “agency fee” paradigm. The District notes that the purpose of an agency shop is to prevent “free riders.” Thus, exempting a class of employees from payment of agency fees defeats the purpose of section 3502.5 and results in a nullity.

Agency shop agreements in the public sector are the “practical equivalent” of union shop agreements in the private sector. (Rae v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Supervisory and Professional Assn., supra, 114 Cal.App.3d 147, 153.) In the public sector, union membership is not a condition of employment, “but all employees, including those who do not choose to join the union, must pay union dues.” (City of Hayward v. United Public Employees, Local 390, SEIU, supra, 54 Cal.App.3d 761, 764.) As acknowledged by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), “Congress’ intent in amending section 8(a)(3) was to outlaw the closed shop while preserving union shops and lesser forms of union security, [however] congress never specified what ‘union shop’ meant.” (International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Salaried, Machine and Furniture Workers, etc. (1993) 311 NLRB 1031, 1036.)

The District has provided some of the legislative history of section 3502.5 for the purpose of demonstrating that the concept of an “agency fee arrangement” has a fixed meaning that describes the situation in which all the members of a bargaining unit are required to either join the union or pay a fair share fee. The analysis of Assembly Bill 1693 sets forth this definition of agency shop: “as a condition of continued employment, the employee must either join the recognized employee organization, or pay the organization a service fee, as specified.” (Assem. Com. on Public Employees and Retirement, Analysis of Assem. Bill No. 1693 (Reg. Sess. 1981-1982), p. 2.) The District also points out that the governor’s press release upon signing Assembly Bill 1693 noted that among other things, the bill required all employees to pay their fair share toward the cost of bargaining. But the narrow glimpse of the legislative history of the State’s 1981 adoption of agency shop arrangements shows only a small portion of a rich labor history in both the public and private sector endorsing many different forms of union security agreements. PERB cannot arrive at a proper interpretation of the MMBA without consideration of the statutes that were enacted before it and upon which much of its language is based.

Union security agreements have been permitted in one form or another since the earliest iterations of the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA). In its 1935 enactment of the Wagner Act,<sup>13</sup> “congress specifically preserved the ‘closed shop’ agreement by appending the following proviso to Section 8, subdivision (3):

Provided, that nothing in this subchapter, or in any other statute of the United States, shall preclude an employer from making an agreement with a labor organization . . . to require as a condition of employment membership therein . . . if such labor organization is the representative of the employees. . .

(International Union of Electronic, Electrical, Salaried, Machine and Furniture Workers, etc., supra, 311 NLRB 1031, 1033.)

In 1947, Congress amended the NLRA with the Taft-Hartley Act.<sup>14</sup> Section 8, subdivision (3) was renumbered to section 8, subdivision (a)(3), and amended to: “(1) eliminate the closed shop; (2) preserve the union shop and lesser forms of union security; provided however, that (3) ‘expulsion from a union [could not] be a ground for compulsory discharge if the worker [was] not delinquent in paying his initiation fees or dues.’” (Id. at 1034.)

Shortly after the Taft-Hartley Act became law, the Supreme Court acknowledged,

One of the oldest techniques in the art of collective bargaining is the closed shop. It protects the integrity of the union and provides stability of labor relations. To achieve stability of labor relations was the primary objective of Congress in enacting the NLRA. Congress knew that a closed shop would interfere with freedom of employees to organize in another union and would, if used, lead inevitably to discrimination in tenure of employment. Nevertheless, with full realization that there was limitation by the proviso of §8(3) upon the freedom of §7, Congress inserted the proviso of §8(3).

Thus, from the NLRA’s early history, we learn that

[t]he proviso to Section 8(3) was intended to be permissive and not exclusive in character. It does not appear to have been the intent of Congress to select only a particular type of union security agreement to be exempted from the operation of the Act. On the contrary, it is reasonable to infer that any agreement ‘as might now be legally consummated’ [i.e., exclusive of the type of domination and assistance proscribed in the Act] was immunized by the terms of the proviso.

(Public Service Company of Colorado (1950) 89 NLRB 418, 423, emphasis in original.)

In The Steel Products Engineering Company (1956) 116 NLRB 811, 812 the NLRB held unlawful a modified union security clause that stated:

All new employees, eligible for membership in the Union, shall become and remain, as a condition of continued employment, members of the Union in good standing for the remaining life of this agreement, except that any member of the Union may resign his or her membership therein during the period of fifteen (15) days next preceding each anniversary of the effective date of this agreement (November 23) by giving written notice to the Company and the Union within such fifteen (15) day period that they elect not to belong to the Union.

The rationale for the NLRB's decision was not that the modified union shop agreement required only new employees to become members, but that the required 30-day notice period was not provided to new employees prior to enforcing the requirement. (Id. at p. 813.)

Based on the NLRB's interpretation of the NLRA, union shop agreements do not have a fixed meaning under the statute. Rather, the statutory endorsement of union shop agreements provides for the maximum permissible degree of interference with an employee's freedom to join or refrain from joining a particular union, but includes lesser forms of union security as well.

As the agency shop is the public sector equivalent of the union shop (see Abood v. Detroit Bd. of Ed., supra, 431 U.S. 209 and Rae v. Bay Area Rapid Transit Supervisory and Professional Assn., supra, 114 Cal.App.3d 147), it may also reasonably be inferred that the California Legislature, by endorsing agency shop agreements, endorsed and adopted the maximum permissible infringement on the employees' rights to refrain from participating in the activities of the union. Nothing in the language of section 3502.5 expressly disallows the type of agency shop sought in this case. Accordingly, I find no legal impediment to the Association's proposed modified agency shop arrangement whereby only newly hired employees are subject to a fair share fee requirement.

C. The District is Adequately Protected From Potential Liability Over Agency Fees

At first blush, the district's opposition to the proposed modified agency shop arrangement appears to be defensive—it claims that its concern is motivated by a desire to avoid being made complicit in the Association's allegedly unlawful scheme to differentiate between groups of employees to include in or exclude from a modified agency shop arrangement. However, preserving a right is distinguishable from affirmatively asserting a right. (El Centro School District (1996) PERB Decision No. 1154.) The District's claim that it sought to avoid being made complicit in an illegal dues retention scheme is unpersuasive given that the District took no steps to present this claim to PERB in a timely manner by filing an unfair practice charge alleging the same pursuant to PERB Regulation 32604, subdivision (a).

The District also raises the concern that the Association would lack the financial means necessary to indemnify the District against claims filed by employees if it is permitted to impose a modified agency shop arrangement. The Board in Fresno Unified School District (1982) PERB Decision No. 208 (Fresno) explained the limits of an employer's reasonable concerns regarding agency fees:

Agency fees, like membership dues, are a matter of internal organizational policy and concern. The employer's interest in the subject generally is limited to its willingness to impose on its non-union employees an agency fee requirement and, if so, whether an authorization election is desirable. It is through the exercise of these two "powers" that the employer's concerns can be satisfied.

However, we find a third and implied employer concern which derives from [Abood, supra, 431 U.S. 209] and [King City High School District Association, CTA/NEA; King City Joint Union High School District; et al. (Cumero) (1982) PERB Decision No. 197]. We consider the employer to have a legitimate interest in protecting itself from potential liability resulting from its agreement to withhold agency fees in excess of those permitted by law. But this concern limits the employer's interest in negotiations to seeking some provision which provides it with protection from potential liability.

(Id. at p. 21.)

As to the third employer concern raised above, and as previously noted herein, when the Fresno case was decided, EERA section 3546 provided that an agency shop provision could be negotiated between the employer and union. During those negotiations, the employer could sever that provision from the rest of the contract and call for employees to vote over the issue.<sup>15</sup> That section of EERA did not, however, contain a hold-harmless provision as is specifically set forth in section 3502.5, subdivision (b).<sup>16</sup> The District here essentially argues that such statutory protection is inadequate to protect its financial interests in the event of litigation over agency fees by employees. Notwithstanding that concerns as to the Association's financial means now or in the future are completely speculative, the statute specifically indemnifies the employer from liability. If negotiation of a contractual indemnification clause was deemed adequate to protect the employer's interest in that regard, then a statutory provision that does so is certainly adequate protection. PERB has no power or authority to address the District's concern that this statutory protection lacks practical force. Such an issue could only be properly addressed by the Legislature.

D. The District May Not Assert The Rights of Third Parties

The District's arguments appear to voice concerns on behalf of those employees who would be required to pay agency fees under the proposed modified agency shop arrangement. For example, the District emphasizes that the core purpose of agency shop in preventing free riders by requiring non-members to pay their fair share of the costs associated with administering a collective bargaining agreement is lost where existing employees are permitted to free ride. The District argues that agency shops stemmed from a concern over the union's discharge of its duty of fair representation. Thus, an agency shop cannot be discriminatory in its application and apply only to new employees, or it would violate the First Amendment and

<sup>15</sup> In contrast, section 3502.5, subdivision (b), empowers only an employee organization to call for an employee vote over the subject of agency shop. Thus, in considering the first two employer concerns raised in the Fresno case under the MMBA scheme, the employer's "powers" are limited to discretion over whether to agree to a negotiated agency fee provision and some input over the choice of a neutral entity to conduct the agency shop election.

section 3502.5. This is so, according to the District, since the intent of these provisions is to prevent free riders since the union is required to fairly represent all employees in the bargaining unit.

It is true, as the District suggests, that the real benefit of an agency shop agreement is felt by the union members who no longer must bear the cost of representation of bargaining unit members who partake in the fruits of the union's labor but do not pay union dues. But PERB's treatment of agency fee challenges is clear—only an employee who pays an agency fee may challenge the union's retention of that fee. (California Nurses Association (O'Malley) (2004) PERB Decision No. 1607-H (CNA-O'Malley); see also, Fresno, supra, PERB Decision 208 at p. 21 for the general recitation of legitimate concerns by the employer regarding agency fees.) Thus, the District lacks standing to assert fee payers' rights. Likewise, any injury to employees who are forced to pay more than their fair share by an agency shop arrangement that exempts some bargaining unit employees is not an injury that is shared by the District.<sup>17</sup>

Thus, to the extent that the District intends to assert the rights of current or future employees who would be required to pay an agency fee under the proposed modified agency shop arrangement, this argument must be dismissed for lack of standing. (CNA-O'Malley, supra, PERB Decision No. 1607-H.)

Based upon all the foregoing, I find that the District violated section 3502.5 of the when it refused to participate in a properly petitioned-for agency shop election and that it has failed to assert a valid defense to its actions.

<sup>17</sup> The District also argues that the agency shop provision sought in this case would render meaningless the agency shop repeal process in section 3502.5, subdivision (d). Again, this section of the Act does not involve rights of the employer, and therefore, the District lacks standing to assert them.

REMEDY

MMBA section 3509, subdivision (b), authorizes PERB to order “the appropriate remedy necessary to effectuate the purposes of this chapter.” (Omnitrans (2010) PERB Decision No. 2143-M.) This includes an order to cease and desist from conduct that violates the MMBA. (City of Torrance (2008) PERB Decision No. 1971-M.)

A properly designed remedial order seeks a restoration of the situation as nearly as possible to that which would have obtained but for the unfair labor practice. (Modesto City Schools (1983) PERB Decision No. 291.) In this case, the Association has properly petitioned for an agency shop election and is entitled to the District’s good faith participation in that process. The order in this case is intended to return the parties to the point in time at which the petition was filed with SMCS, in order that the District and the Association may either agree to the terms of a CEA or authorize SMCS to establish the terms of a CEA, to which the parties must comply.

It is also appropriate to order the District to post a notice incorporating the terms of this order at all locations where notices to unit employees are usually posted. Posting of such a notice, signed by an authorized representative of the District, provides employees with notice that the District acted in an unlawful manner, must cease and desist from its illegal action, and will comply with the order. In addition to physical posting of paper notices, the notice shall be posted by electronic message, intranet, internet site, and other electronic means customarily used by the District to communicate with its employees in the bargaining unit represented by Local 521. (City of Sacramento (2013) PERB Decision No. 2351-M.) It effectuates the purposes of the MMBA to inform employees of the resolution of this controversy. (Omnitrans, supra, PERB Decision No. 2143-M.)

PROPOSED ORDER

Upon the foregoing findings of fact and conclusions of law, and the entire record in the case, it is found that the Orange County Water District (District) violated the Meyer-Milias-Brown Act (Act), Government Code section 3502.5. The District violated the Act by refusing to participate in good faith in a properly petitioned-for agency fee election.

Pursuant to section 3509 of the Government Code, it hereby is ORDERED that the District, its governing board and its representatives shall:

A. CEASE AND DESIST FROM:

1. Refusing to participate in an agency shop election.

B. TAKE THE FOLLOWING AFFIRMATIVE ACTIONS DESIGNED TO EFFECTUATE THE POLICIES OF THE ACT:

1. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of a final decision in this matter, either enter into a consent election agreement with the Orange County Water District Employees Association or authorize the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service to prepare a consent election agreement governing the mechanics of an agency shop election.

2. Provide to the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service any documentation deemed by that organization to be necessary for the conduct of an agency shop election, pursuant to PERB Regulation 32999 et seq., including but not limited to a list of names of all employees included in the voting unit as of the cutoff date for voter eligibility. (See PERB Regulation 33004.)

3. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of a final decision in this matter, post at all work locations where notices to employees in the Orange County Water District Employees Association customarily are posted, copies of the Notice attached hereto as an Appendix. The Notice must be signed by an authorized agent of the Orange County Water District, indicating that it will comply with the terms of this Order. Such posting shall be maintained for a period of thirty (30) consecutive workdays. Reasonable steps shall be taken to ensure that the Notice is not reduced in size, altered, defaced or covered with any other material. In addition to physical posting of paper notices, the Notice shall be posted by electronic message, intranet, internet site, and other electronic means customarily used by the District to communicate with its employees in the bargaining unit represented by the Association.

4. Written notification of the actions taken to comply with this Order shall be made to the General Counsel of the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB or Board), or the General Counsel's designee. Respondent shall provide reports, in writing, as directed by the General Counsel or his/her designee. All reports regarding compliance with this Order shall be concurrently served on the Orange County Water District Employees Association and the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Right to Appeal

Pursuant to California Code of Regulations, title 8, section 32305, this Proposed Decision and Order shall become final unless a party files a statement of exceptions with the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB or Board) itself within 20 days of service of this Decision.

The Board's address is:

Public Employment Relations Board
Attention: Appeals Assistant
1031 18th Street
Sacramento, CA 95811-4124
(916) 322-8231
FAX: (916) 327-7960
E-FILE: PERBe-file.Appeals@perb.ca.gov

In accordance with PERB regulations, the statement of exceptions should identify by page citation or exhibit number the portions of the record, if any, relied upon for such exceptions. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 32300.)

A document is considered “filed” when actually received during a regular PERB business day. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, §§ 32135, subd. (a) and 32130; see also Gov. Code, § 11020, subd. (a).) A document is also considered “filed” when received by facsimile transmission before the close of business together with a Facsimile Transmission Cover Sheet or received by electronic mail before the close of business, which meets the requirements of PERB Regulation 32135(d), provided the filing party also places the original, together with the required number of copies and proof of service, in the U.S. mail. (Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 32135, subds. (b), (c) and (d); see also Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, §§ 32090, 32091 and 32130.)

Any statement of exceptions and supporting brief must be served concurrently with its filing upon each party to this proceeding. Proof of service shall accompany each copy served on a party or filed with the Board itself. (See Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, §§ 32300, 32305, 32140, and 32135, subd. (c).)

NOTICE TO EMPLOYEES
POSTED BY ORDER OF THE
PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS BOARD
An Agency of the State of California

After a hearing in Unfair Practice Case No. LA-CE-856-M, Orange County Water District Employees Association v. Orange County Water District, in which all parties had the right to participate, it has been found that the Orange County Water District (District) violated the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (MMBA), Government Code section 3500 et seq. by failing and refusing to participate in good faith in a properly petitioned-for agency fee election by the Orange County Water District Employees Association (Association).

As a result of this conduct, we have been ordered to post this Notice and we will:

A. CEASE AND DESIST FROM:

1. Refusing to participate in properly petitioned-for agency fee elections.

B. TAKE THE FOLLOWING AFFIRMATIVE ACTIONS DESIGNED TO EFFECTUATE THE POLICIES OF THE MMBA:

1. Within ten (10) workdays of the service of final decision in this matter, either enter into a consent election agreement with the Association or authorize the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service to prepare a consent election agreement governing the mechanics of an agency shop election.

2. Provide to the California State Mediation and Conciliation Service any documentation deemed by the organization to be necessary for the conduct of an agency shop election, pursuant to PERB Regulation 32999 et seq., including but not limited to a list of names of all employees including in the voting unit as of the cutoff date for voter eligibility. (See PERB Regulation 33004.)
